

Quick TD, Passes Lead PHS over Bellevue, 20-6

Plattsmouth High parlayed a quick opener for a 50-yard TD run on its first play of the game and the passing of Tom Winscot to Jim Shown into a 20-6 football victory at Bellevue Friday night.

John Konfrst juggled the ball on the initial play from scrimmage for the Blue Devils. He broke over center, cut through a cluster of players just beyond the line of scrimmage and was gone.

Konfrst's plunge for the extra point was short. Just 2:16 had elapsed in the game and Plattsmouth fans probably wondered if they were to see a repeat of Konfrst's 5-TD performance against Bellevue last year. But, it was not to be and it was a rugged game to the finish.

Plattsmouth had another golden opportunity in the first quarter when Jim Stewart fielded a line-drive punt as short safety and ran it from the Bellevue 37 to the 3.

But Winscot fumbled on second down and Bellevue recovered.

The quarter ended 6-0 and the teams played a scoreless second quarter in which Winscot twice had apparent TDs in sight on passes. He overthrew Jim Shown in the clear on the Bellevue 20 and later hit Al Dasher on the 15 but Al dropped the ball after a half step on the dead run.

Plattsmouth struck fast in the third quarter, using only 1:57 to tally after Bellevue's kickoff. Winscot threw to Shown for 16, then for 4. Konfrst ran for 10 to the Bellevue 32. Winscot connected with Shown for 23 to the 7.

That same combination was good for the TD on second down from the 5.

Konfrst ran the point after a pass failed on the first attempt but Bellevue was called for interference.

Bellevue went 65 yards to score in 8 plays, 4 1/2 minutes later. Phil Bartles (No. 37) led the drive with some hard running interspersed with three passes by quarterback Pat Monroe.

Larry Wogamon finally scored on first down from the 12. Plattsmouth's last TD came with 51 seconds left. Winscot hitting Shown on a 40-yard pass play. Shown got outside right end in the flat to get the ball and then outran the only defender who had a chance at him.

Winscot ran the extra point for a 20-6 tally.

Bellevue was not quite done, though, and moved to the Plattsmouth 16 on 37 and 18 yard passes before time ran out.

It was Plattsmouth's 2nd win against 2 losses and a tie. Bellevue has won 2, lost 4.

Winscot, besides hitting 9 passes in 7 for 107 yards, unloaded a 60-yard punt to put Bellevue back to its own 20 in the 4th quarter when the outcome was still in doubt.

Standouts on defense for the Blue Devils were guards Jerry Haase and Jerry Wurtele, tackle Ed Hohman and halfback Al Dasher who was in on several key tackles.

William A. Paxton

A leading figure in the development of the cattle business that had led Nebraska to place the designation "The Beef State" on its automobile license plates was William A. Paxton. First as a rancher in western Nebraska and then as one of the chief organizers of the Union Stockyards and a leader in the development of Omaha as a packing center he was a key figure in the development of Nebraska's cattle business.

Paxton came to Nebraska first in 1857 as a construction foreman on the military road constructed between Omaha and Fort Kearney. He went back to Missouri and got married, but returned to Nebraska in 1860. Like many of the early cattlemen in Nebraska's history, he got a start as a freighter, and for several years he was in the freighting business, also engaging in contracting construction work on the trans-continental telegraph line.

Paxton took several contracts in constructing the Union Pacific railroad, and accumulated enough of a financial reserve in this operation to branch into other fields. By 1870 he was making other contracts with the government, selling it cattle for delivery to Indian tribes, and for military uses. Thus he became further involved in ranching and the Keystone Cattle Company in which he had a major interest was one of the states more important ranches in the 1870's. He is reported to have sold his ranch holdings for over 2-3rds of a million dollars in 1883.

Upon selling his ranching interests Paxton transferred his entire attention to Omaha where he was already deeply involved in the affairs of the city. He had organized in 1879 the Paxton-Gallagher Company, wholesale grocery business. In 1878 he had ventured into the stockyards activity and helped organize the Union Stock-Yards Company. This company operated in Omaha for a time and then moved to Council Bluffs, and in 1883 he became interested in the Union Stock Yards Company of South Omaha. In this company and in the related activities in which he concerned himself such as the Union Stock Yards Bank and the Union Stock Yards railroad Paxton exerted a powerful influence to make Omaha a leading packing center. His leadership was a decisive factor in making Omaha one of the world's greatest meat-packing centers.

Paxton also became involved in many other aspects of Omaha activity. His name, still carried by the Paxton Hotel and the Paxton-Vierling Iron works, indicates some of his interests. The hotel was supposedly named for him when he objected to the original builders stopping with a four story structure and agreed to raise the money to build another story.

A leader in real estate development in Omaha, and a member of the Nebraska legislature, Paxton was one of Nebraska's important leaders in the 19th century.

DARN THOSE PLANES!
WICHITA, Kan. — Johnnie Eli, of Wichita, told that he became confused by circle drives at Municipal Airport and suddenly noticed a plane trying to crowd him off the road.

The pilot of a DC-6 passenger airliner starting to take off slowed his plane just in time to avoid hitting Eli's auto on a runway. The plane came so close to the car that the pilot noted its license number and radioed it to the control tower.

P. S. Eli was booked on a charge of drunken driving.
