D. Day and Widmark In "Tunnel of Love"
"The Tunnel of Love," the comedy about love in the suburbs sometimes described as a bedtime story for grownups, has been made into a motion picture, following its long-run success in New York and on the road and will play at the Cass Theatre thru Tuesday. Doris Day and Richard Widmark play the suburban couple whose determination to have an heir brings hilarious if almost catastrophic results.
Launched in February, 1957, the play created laughter on Broadway for a year and a half and since then has continued as a touring success. Joseph Fields equaled with it the acclaim for such other Fields stage productions as "Wonderful Town," "Junior Miss," "My Sister Eileen" and "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes." He also produced the film, with Martin Melcher as co-producer, based on the play Fields and Peter De Vries wrote from the De Vries novel. MGM is releasing the picture, filmed in CinemaScope.
Playing co-starring roles with Miss Day and Widmark are Gig Young, a detouring husband; and Gia Scala, as the social worker who operates above and beyond the call of duty. Elizabeth Fraser and Elizabeth Wilson repeat their original stage roles. Gene Kelly displays the same zip in directing as he does in acting in this, the first picture he has directed in which he does not appear. — Adv.
