General De Gaulle

General Charles de Gaulle has now had almost a year in which to put France's house in order. It was in May of 1958 that the threatened revolution began in Algeria, and it is significant that main problem still facing France, and President de Gaulle, is the Algerian rebellion.

Back in May of 1958, beginning on the 13th, the crowds of natives and Europeans which appeared so joyous, gave the impression that something had really changed in Algeria, and that perhaps the bitter war which had been raging there for almost four years would soon be ended.

In fact, General de Gaulle's greatest problem was that of ending the war in Algeria. To date he has not been able to achieve an end, and there is some controversy on the trend of that war, since he assumed the helm of state.

It is generally believed that the military situation has been improved, particularly in the Ouarsenis Mountains which had been one of the worst troubled areas. General de Gaulle has seen to it that extensive military operations have been carried out there, in strength, and he has also succeeded in closing the Franco-Tunisian frontier to a far greater degree than it had been closed before his rise to power. This was the source of many arms and supplies to the rebels.

There seems to be some optimism that an end to the fighting in Algeria is near. The reason that it is so important to Americans is that France is tying down half a million troops (most of its army) and most of its military budget, in seeking. This has so weakened a supposedly major power in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization that the United States must depend upon West Germany, rather than France, as the mayor source of strength and support on the Continent.

In summary, General de Gaulle's first year seems to have left his reputation intact and there apparently has been little loss of confidence in him on the part of the people of France. However, more than anything else, his first year shows that, instead of a quick end to France's troubles in Algeria, General de Gaulle is, on the contrary, embarked on a long-term program in seeking to cure France's ills, which may take many more years in addition to this first one, which is now about concluded.

Down Memory Lane

20 YEARS AGO Among those receiving their degrees at University of Nebraska this week was James F. Begley, son of the late Judge

Jam T. Begley, who had distinguished career of twenty years on the district court bench of the second district. James F. Begley was graduated from the Plattsmouth high school in 1931. He has received an offer of a post in the department of justice at Washington, D. C., but declined preferring to enter private practice. He is entering practice with John Ledwith, Jr., at Lincoln (Ed note. Mr. Begley served in world war 11 as a member of the air force and at the close located at Plattsmouth in partnership with Richard C. Peck. He is present county attorney of Cass County) — In the commencement exercises of the University of Omaha, Fred P. Trilety, formerly of this city, but now of Omaha received his BA degree. He was a member of the class of 1925 of the Plattsmouth schools — Stephen G. Wiles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Wiles of near this city was awarded the Sears-Roebuck scholarship award at the University of Nebraska for 1939-40 for his high standing in scholastic attainment — Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wooster of this city are announcing the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Miss Alice, to John Fleming, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Fleming of Minneapolis, Minn. The wedding is to take place June 17 at the Holy Rosary Church in this city. Miss Wooster has been employed in Minneapolis for the past few years — Mrs. William Halmes was hostess at a miscellaneous shower honoring Miss Dorothea Siemoneit whose marriage to Mr. Emil F. Schmidt will occur soon. Members of Platte lodge No. 7, IOOF, were honored by a group of the distinguished officers of the order, Grand Commander George B. Nelson, Tekamah; E. A. Hanna, Blair, grand patriarch; H. W. Bloodgood, Louisville, grand district deputy. Harry L. Kruger, local noble grand, presided over the meeting. Many were here from Louisville and Avoca.

30 YEARS AGO Dwellers along So. 6th street had the opportunity of witnessing a collision between two bicycles. George Luschnitsky, Jr., employed at Soennichsen's, coming south on the street and swinging across the street parked near the Moya produce station as a cycle ridden by Vernon T. Arn, Jr., came around the corner from Pearl street and before he could stop had crashed into the cycle of George. The boys were uninjured but Sam will be cycleless for a few days — Eagles and Auxiliary held joint installation of officers, Arthur Kief, president; Donald Fickle, vice-president; Henry Hintzmam, chaplain; John E. Schutz, secretary; James Rebal, treasurer; Walter Victor, conductor; A. F. Meisinger, trustee; John Meisinger, Jr., inside guard; William Hennings, outside guard. Auxiliary Mrs. Con Lynch, president; Mrs. Charles Anthes, vice-president; Mrs. V. E. Hanley, chaplain; Mrs. Donald Fickle, secretary; Mrs. J. E. Schutz, secretary; Mrs. William O'Donnell, treasurer; Mrs. William Kief, inside guard; Mrs. Peter Gradoville, outside guard.
