Crop Reports Are 'Mixed', Many 'Plus'

Midsummer has come and gone with mixed reports of crop world shall last, there shall be seed time and harvest" says the Bible—prospects are meager for some and bountiful for others, but in the great central crop producing areas in the United States, prospects are generally on the plus side.

Particularly fortunate this year is the northern third of Illinois and the areas of Iowa, Wisconsin and Indiana closest to it. Rain has been plentiful and temperatures have been above normal with no adverse effects of hail, floods or drought periods. Corn in this area is truly a tremendous prospect this year.

The heavy floods of Aug. 2 in Eastern Nebraska and Southwestern Iowa were duplicated Aug. 6 in Southeastern Iowa and Northern Missouri with rains up to 9 inches reported in Fort Madison and Leon in Southeastern Iowa. These concentrated flood areas have suffered much loss from down corn, broken stalks and hail damage but are confined to rather small sections. Many counties around this area benefited from ample rain without the adverse effects of the over supply.

General comments from many crop reporters indicated varied crop conditions and varied problems of the season:

Southwest Minnesota — dried July since 1936 has hurt some corn badly; Northern Alabama — early corn now maturing; Southern Nebraska — rains of Aug. 6 saved dryland corn and sorghum; Arkansas — crops look good all over the state; North Central Minnesota — rains up to 4 inches saved corn on good soils, corn on light soils now being salvaged by putting in silo.

Southeastern Nebraska — one-third of corn crop so late as to cause frost worries; Southern Mississippi — less corn and sorghum this year, more cotton and soybeans; Central Illinois — many picker shellers being sold, custom operators contracting at 10 cents per bushel; corn being sold for 97-98 cents for fall market.

Southern Alabama — first bale of cotton ginned this week; New York — more corn being raised for grain to relieve shipping costs of Midwest importation.

Sidney Rodeo Has Gross of $100,000

The 1959 rodeo at Sidney, Ia., grossed $100,000 as the first showing that ever featured a star movie-TV performer and the first to give a Sunday performance.

A count shows that 178 of the country's best performers took part in addition to Dale Robertson of "Wells Fargo".

Gate receipts were well over 50 per cent higher than last year and it is believed topped all previous years except one.

There was great confusion as to who topped the show in the cowboys entered. Jim Shoulders of Henryetta, Okla., three times all around champ in Sidney, and a former world's champion and Tom Tescher of Sentinel Butte, N. D.

Shoulders carried away $1,602 and Tescher $1,494 in prize money. Bill Teague, champion calf roper, won $1,309.99 in his events; Jim Tescher, $1,010 as a saddle bronch rider and Willie Thomas took $1,321 in the Brahma bull events.

CITY GETS THE BLUES

Luton, England — When blue rain began falling in the streets of this English town, the residents were baffled.

It was not until later that the cause of the mysterious rain was discovered. A nearby dye factory was being demolished at the time the storm came up. Large globs of dye were swept skyward by the wind and mixed with the rain, tinting it blue.

JOURNAL ADVERTISING Pays BIG Dividends!

Linder Firestone Store ran a full page ad in the JOURNAL of Monday, August 24th., announcing a PRE-MOVING SALE ending Saturday, August 29th. Boyd Linder, owner of the store used no other medium of advertising. No hand bills, no mailers, no catalogues... JUST THIS ONE AD IN THE JOURNAL.

Here's what he says:

"My sale was complete success. It exceeded my expectations by a large margin.

Every day of the sale was a Saturday. People came from all over the county to buy. We had a highly satisfactory Sale, thanks to Journal advertising."

BOYD LINDER.
