Lions Hear About School Problems

Members of the Lions Club and their guests were given an insight into school problems in our growing community by Oscar Mussman, superintendent of Plattsmouth schools, the regular Lions meeting Tuesday night.

Mussman described the system under which city public schools are being operated. All grades, kindergarten through 6th grade are under the guidance of William Landis. Students in grades 7 through high school are under the supervision of the high school principal, Wayne Rodehorst.

The speaker explained some of the inequities that exist in the financing of our schools. Some of them are peculiar to the community while most of them are a part of the trend in growing population.

He said the average per annum cost of education for a child in the public school system is $400. In Plattsmouth, the figure is around $300 per child per year; 300 children in our schools are attending under PL-874, covering children of Government employees.

Mussman called attention to the figures published in Monday's Journal relative to the progressing need for classrooms now and in the near future. He also described the problem of obtaining teachers.

He said "not enough teachers are becoming available to meet our expanding school needs."

He pleaded for State Aid to schools, giving as a reason the fact that in today's society, children educated in a community do not stay in the place where they obtained their education, but migrate to other communities or states.

Lions Club president Paul Fauquet assured Mussman that the local club would support the school authorities and assist in working for the best interests and needs of the schools here.

Prior to the talk by Mussman, the club voted to sponsor a trap shoot in October. They also voted to help sponsor a men's choral group in the city.

With the induction of Fr. Robert Hodson as the newest member of the club, proper saying of grace will return to the club.

Rotarians See Film on 'Grouse'

The Rotary Club Tuesday noon saw a film on "the courtship of the American grouse" at its regular meeting at the Lions Community Building.

Arrangements for the film were made by Rotarian Harold Edwards, resident manager of the Plattsmouth Waterfowl Management Area.

The color film showed prairie chickens, sage grouse and sharp-tail grouse in the fascinating courting rituals. Full sound recorded their strange booming and feet stamping.

Fred Lugsch was program chairman for the day.

Special guests were Bill Gurnett, newly appointed conservation officer for the waterfowl area here, and Dean Meisinger, math and mechanical drawing instructor at the high school.

The club will have an evening meeting next Tuesday, a Rotary Ann affair which members and their ladies attend. It will be at the Lions Building with serving of dinner scheduled for 7 o'clock.

Board Accepts Car, Panel Bids

The Cass County Board of Commissioners Wednesday accepted bids on a car for the County Welfare Department and a panel truck for the surveyor's office but rejected all bids on a used truck tractor for use by the County Roads Department.

The only bid on a new 1959 car for the Welfare Department was from Cass County Motors, $1,915 for a black four-door sedan. It was bought without trade-in.

The Commissioner had asked bids on a 1955 or newer truck tractor to pull a 25-ton lowboy trailer for use in hauling equipment and materials. Three bids were received—$3,350 on a 1955, $4,175 on a 1956 and $1,950 on a 1953 model.

Commissioners Melvin Todd and Herman Bornemeier were at the meeting. Commissioner William Nolte was absent.

Stander Implement was the only and successful bidder on the panel truck. The bid on the one-ton International was $1,710 with trade-in.

With the King Korn Karnation Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the band will also be busy since it annually takes part in Karnation parades.

It is expected many Plattsmouth people will attend the performance at the Ak-Sar-Ben Rodeo Saturday night.

A Classified Ad in The Journal cost as little as 50 cents.

WHO???? — After the King Korn Karnation, scheduled for tonight at 8 p. m. on Main Street, you'll be able to fill in the faces of the 1959 King and Kween of Karnation. Six Plattsmouth girls are contestants for the Kween title — Janet Campbell, Jane Fauquet, Mary Iverson, Mary Ann Ryan, Mary Ann Bergmann and Karlene Senf. One will be selected by a secret panel of judges. The King will be a man from outside Plattsmouth, also secretly selected. Many men have been unofficially "nominated" by guessers in recent weeks.

Here's Information on 3 Korn Karnation Parades

Three parades will be featured in the King Korn Karnation again this year. Following is information to assist those with parade entries and the people organizing the parades:

School-Kiddies Parade
Friday, 1:30 p. m.

There will be entries in the school section of the Schools-Kiddies Parade from both local and out-county schools. A list of schools other than local which will enter floats was not available.

In charge of the parade are L. A. Behrends, county superintendent of schools, and O. F. Mussman, superintendent of Plattsmouth schools.

Mussman listed the following information in regard to entries from local schools:

The lineup will form at Avenue B from 6th to 8th Street and come out past the Hinky Dinky Store. Floats designed for view on left side because the parade goes down Main Street on the left side of the street—this is important to remember when making up four float. The parade will break up past Ruback's and Ofc Oil Station.

Following is the lineup of floats: St. John's School, First Ward School, Wintersteen School, Columbian School, High School, Central School, P.H.A., F.F.A., in that order.

Trophies for 1st, 2nd and 3rd place will again be awarded this year. Trophies will be awarded after the parade. Floats judged 1st, 2nd, and 3rd are to take part in the parade Saturday night.

Prowlers Reported At Union School

A prowler entered the Union elementary grade school late Monday or early Tuesday morning as was revealed Tuesday when Frank Anderson, school custodian, arrived at the school.

Entrance was gained by prying off a hasp on the furnace room door and entering through the basement. The intruder apparently tried to gain entrance by climbing the fire escape on the east side of the building which opens into the primary room. A file in the room had been opened but nothing taken or disturbed. A cigarette butt was found on the floor and a footprint found in one of the rooms that corresponded with one found on the outside of the building.

A rock had been thrown through a window in the gym but no other damage was noted.

Members of the schoolboard, George Stine, Don Wolfe and Mrs. Glen Hartman were notified.

Wehrbein, UN Team Place 6th

Austin, Minn. — A University of Nebraska swine judging team placed sixth at the National Barrow Show here last week.

Members of the team included Gerald Goid, Brule; Ted Klug, Valentine; Lloyd Langemeier, Ithaca; George O'Neal, Mound City, Mo.; Donn Simonson, Mullen; Ernest Thayer, Greeley; Roger Wehrbein, Plattsmouth, and Patrick Wright, Bridgeport.

Team coach was Richard Warren, assistant professor of animal husbandry at the College of Agriculture, Dr. E. R. Peo, assistant professor of animal husbandry accompanied them.

You Can Arrange To See Waterfowl On 'Refuge' Here

Although the Plattsmouth Waterfowl Management Area of the State Game Commission on the river bottom northeast of here is posted "No Trespassing" during the time waterfowl migrations are underway, it is possible to see the area.

Resident manager Harold Edwards told the Journal arrangements can be made to get on the area and see waterfowl when migrations start by telephoning him or the new conservation officer for the area, Bill Gurnett of Omaha who will be here beginning about Oct. 15.

Gurnett was recently appointed officer for the area to serve in that capacity while migrations are underway.

Edwards said they have no way of telling when the migration will start, but it could be almost any time now, since early cold weather in the waterfowl breeding areas of Canada are not uncommon.

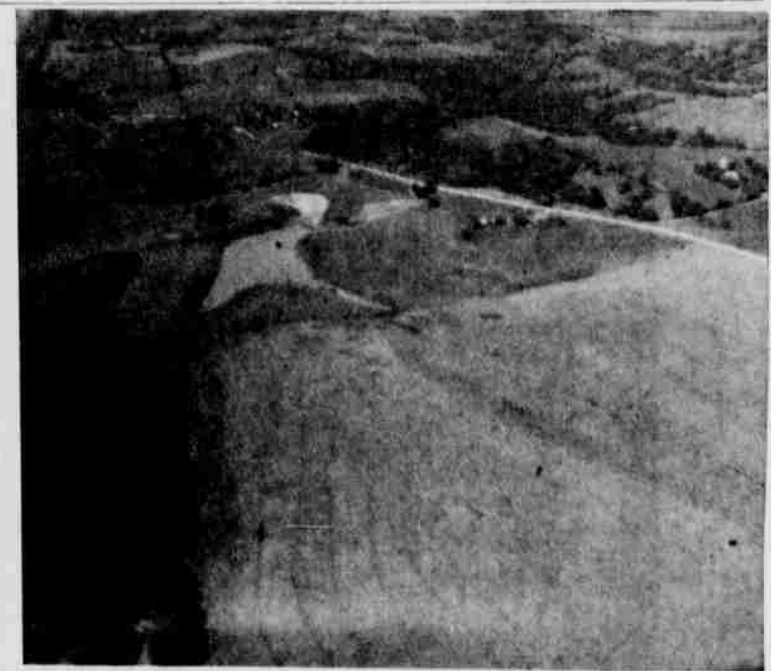

Many Enjoy Trap Shoot Along the Platte River Range

Sunday a number of the local lovers of trap shooting gathered at the Riverview range near the Platte river for a practice shoot. There were some thirty out to try their skill on the range and some very good records were set. NEW LAKES — The aerial views above were taken by the Soil Conservation Service recently. They show two of the new flood control dams built here and the lakes that have formed behind them. In the left-hand photo, Dam 10-A in west Plattsmouth, christened the Hill City Project, is shown at upper left center. It lies just east of the Missouri-Pacific railroad tracks which run beneath the overpass of the U.S. 73-75 by-pass. The lake is several acres big and growing. Dam 18-A and its new lake on the Newton Sullivan farm southeast of the city is shown at right. Several acres there are also under water behind the dam. The road in the photo is the Rock Bluff Road, leading toward Plattsmouth from right to left in the picture.

Many To Be In Impressive Crowning Fete

A cast of more than 100 will take part tonight in the Karnation Ceremony as the first major event of the Kness Kountry King Korn Karnation.

The annual pageant is to announce, and then crown, the reigning King and Kween for the Karnation.

Karlene Senf, Mary Ann Bergmann, Mary Ann Ryan, Mary Iverson, Jane Fauquet and Janet Campbell are Plattsmouth candidates for the Kween title.

The King will be from outside Plattsmouth.

Taking part along with these principals will be a royal court of young ladies and men from high school, a small orchestra from the high school to play during the ceremony and several youngsters who will be crown bearers, flower bearers and train bearers.

Dale Bowman will be master of ceremonies.

Senior boys and girls of Plattsmouth high will be Dukes and Duchesses, students from 8th through 11th grades are to be lords and ladies and high school students from here and other county towns will be Counts and Countesses.

Following the ceremony, the new King and Kween will hold court at the Lions Community Building.

Planners Agree on Golf Site

A golf course which could be in operation by next year about four miles southeast of here is now envisioned by a group of planners here.

About 30 men met several times the past several weeks to talk possibilities of a course for Plattsmouth.

Tuesday night, they decided on a site, 40 acres owned by Gus Clouet at the southwest corner of Four Corners, which can be leased for five years with an option to lease for another five and to purchase at a cost of $8,500 any time in the 10-year period.

Now, the group, unofficially called the Plattsmouth Golf Corporation, is on the hunt for persons who are willing to take a share of stock at $200 in the course in the interest of playing golf and providing needed recreation facilities for this community.

Pledges will be accepted and when a goal of $12,500 has been pledged money will be collected and development of the nine-hole course will proceed, the group decided.

A share of stock will entitle the holder to one vote in management of the course and to reduced membership fees.

Boyd Linder, president of the group of planners, is also membership chairman with most of those who attended the planning meetings as members of the membership committee.

The question was asked at the Tuesday meeting "It is possible for us to develop a course within the monetary goal set?" A veteran golfer in the group said he knew it could be done without a doubt, and within a short time.

Autos Damaged

While no one was injured in a car collision near Murray on Saturday, $1,000 damage to the cars was reported by State Trooper August Ihde at Nebraska City.

Autos driven north by John W. Bookwiler, 41, Lawrence, Kan., and Jerome J. Sicunas, 21, Omaha, both tried to pass another northbound car near the Murray turnout at the same time.

The Sicunas car went into the ditch.
