Ragweed Can Be Controlled

LINCOLN — Satisfactory control of perennial ragweed can be obtained by spraying with 1 pound of 2, 4-D ester per acre in June or early July, states J. C. Swainbank, Extension agronomist at the University of Nebraska.

The area will need to be sprayed for 2 or 3 consecutive years as one treatment is not sufficient to give complete control. Spraying in the late afternoon or early evening may help as the spray does not dry so rapidly at that time of day and more of it is absorbed by the plant. Results are also better if the weeds are growing rapidly at the time they are sprayed.

Perennial ragweed is a tough rooted plant that spreads by underground root stalks as well as by seed. It is found principally in pastures, meadows, roadsides and waste places but does not persist long in cultivated land.

HOW WOULD YOU PAY $155,000?

The other day, not far from here, a jury awarded $155,000 to a pedestrian seriously injured in an automobile accident.

Chances are the motorist was only PARTLY covered by insurance, and much of the $155,000 came OUT OF HIS OWN POCKET — somehow.

This could happen to you, unless you have ENOUGH automobile insurance. And if you already have some, then the added insurance protection you need costs only a few dollars more.

Let me check your protection for you. Call me today at (your phone number).
