In The Service

BOSTON, Mass. — Paul E. Shanklin, chief yeoman, USCG, son of Rev. C. H. Shanklin of Union, Nebr., and husband of the former Miss Wanda J. Hulce of Kansas City, Kans., departed Boston, Mass., Dec. 1 aboard the Coast Guard Icebreaker Eastwind bound for the Antarctic and participation in "Operation Deepfreeze 60".

Enroute, the icebreaker's first stop will be Dec. 7 in the Canal Zone for a two-day layover. She will then proceed to Port Lyttelton, N. Z., arriving New Year's Eve. On Jan. 4, the Eastwind will leave Lyttelton and arrive at her base of operations, Hallett Station in the Ross Sea by Jan. 15, where she will officially report to the Naval Support Forces of Antarctica.

Assisting two Navy icebreakers, the Eastwind will escort supply ships, perform ice reconnaissance and gather hydrographic information before her anticipated completion of Antarctic operations the end of February.

The return trip expects to afford liberty for her crew in Australia, Pago Pago, Samoa Islands, and Jamaica, arriving in the states by mid-April.
