Ashland Girl Is 'March' Teen Leader

From one year in an iron lung in 1951 to the State's top teen age leader for the January 1960 New March of Dimes.

That's the story of 17-year-old Karen Rogers, Ashland, Neb., farm girl whose appointment to the state leadership post was announced by State Chairman Ted R. Hughes of Seward.

Karen Rogers

As State Teens Chairman, she will lead Nebraska youth in raising money during January to fight not only polio but to assist with the new enlarged March of Dimes scientific attack against arthritis and birth defects as well, Hughes said.

Badly paralyzed at the age of 9, she lost 2 years of school, has had to return to the hospital on 14 different occasions, has had numerous bouts with surgery and must still wear a body support, a full length leg brace and get about on crutches. "But she has never lost her warm smile," said Hughes, "nor has she lost her will to win or her genuine interest in the welfare of others."

Popular at Ashland High School where she is a junior, "Karen is a born optimist," said Hughes. "Even back in 1951 when she was spending 24 hours a day in an iron lung (which she characteristically referred to as her 'green convertible') there was never a doubt in her mind that she would one day walk again."

"I'm interested in the National Foundation and its March of Dimes," said Karen, "because I know what they have done for me and other kids crippled by polio and because of the great possibilities for progress that now lie ahead in the fields of arthritis and birth defects."

"When you think that one out of every 16 new babies are born with a birth defect, it really gives us young people something to think about," she said, "because we will be the parents of tomorrow!"

Award-Winning Secretary Here

Peggy Cass, whose first job was as a secretary, is discovering that secretarial experience pays off.

She won the Antoinette Perry Award for the best supporting actress on the Broadway stage as the secretary, Agnes Gooch, in "Antie Mame." Now she appears in the same portrayal in Warner Bros. film adaptation of the comedy hit, starring Rosalind Russell, playing Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at the Cass Theatre.

The embryonic actress was hired as a secretary with a publishing company soon after arriving in New York from Boston. Lunch hours were spent in casting offices, but after several months of "no casting today" replies, Miss Cass returned to Boston.

Success came with her role in "Antie Mame," and since then, Peggy Cass has been featured in virtually all the major television dramatic shows and currently has a TV show of her own in New York.

Morton DaCosta directed "Antie Mame" for Warner Bros. and the Technirama - Technicolor production also features Forrest Tucker, Coral Browne and Fred Clark. — Adv.

JALOPY

Chippenhams, England—Douglas Mainstone paid a fine in court after police arrested him for driving a real jalopy. The car had no floor, engine, fire-can, or horn. A one-gallon tin can, wired to the dashboard, served as a gasoline tank and the front seat was a kitchen stool.

LOT OF WORK FOR A DIME

Indianapolis — Police did not believe James Coleman's story about losing a dime in a pay telephone. They found him in the booth with a hammer, mallet, screw driver, and can opener — and one very battered telephone.
