Louisville Resident 50 Years To Live In Indianapolis

LOUISVILLE (Special)—Fred Brammer, who has lived in Louisville for almost 50 years, was to leave the last of the week to make his home in Indianapolis, Ind. with his daughter, Miss Gertrude. Brammer was born in Germany and came to Nebraska while a young man. He moved to Louisville in 1911 and was employed at the National Stone Quarry for many years.

When The Ash Grove Cement Company came to Louisville in 1927 he went to work for them and remained with them until his retirement several years ago. He was assistant superintendent in charge of the quarry.

Mrs. Brammer died about a year ago and his daughter finally persuaded him to come and live with her. Miss Gertrude has an excellent position in Indianapolis as a dietitian for a large department store.

Brammer has always taken an active part in civic affairs of the town and will be greatly missed. A few samples of his hobby are the iron railing on the steps of the Legion Building, the iron letters at the City Park entrance and the iron wreath of acacia over the door of the Masonic Temple in Springfield.

LOUISVILLE (Special) — Twelve Louisville High School students and their teacher, Mrs. Ruth Leadbrand and Mrs. Eric Davis as sponsor, attended the district dramatics meet at Peru State Teachers College March 18. Excellent ratings were received by Joe Citta, news commentary; Dorothy Christianson, prose reading; and Kay Albert, interpretive speech, in the group receiving higher ratings than their first performance.

Other excellent ratings were received by John Stohmann in discussion, in his first attempt at this speech activity, John Davis in original speech and Janean Hubbell in her first attempt at discussion.

Mary Heil, reading poetry and Janean Hubbell, extemporaneous received good ratings. Janean had the misfortune to run overtime which lowers the ratings.

A play reading, "Seeds of Suspicion" was presented by a group of sophomores and one junior in competition with older students and received a good rating. Participating in the play were Jack Welch, Kathy Campbell, Jim Brown, Darrell Derby and Nancy Johnson.

Tentative plans are being made for the presentation of a dramatics program for the public next year, preceding the contests.
