More Teachers, 55-Minute Class Periods Needed

Present early registration shows the Junior-Senior high enrollment here up nearly 12 per cent. High School Principal Wayne Rochorst said.

This has caused a need for additional faculty members and since the building has been functioning at over-capacity it has been necessary to make some changes in scheduling, he said.

In order that practical utilization of present facilities be reallzed and conflicts in scheduling be reduced the school day will be divided into seven 55-minute periods, Rodehorst said. This will increase the number of daily teaching stations from 126 to 147 locations.

In order to take complete advantage of this program and in absorbing the Board's policy for providing an oppportunity for each student to more nearly achieve his maximum of innate ability, each student will enroll for 25 semester hours each semester, the principal said. So that underclassmen may participate in extra class activities without overloading their schedule, of the 25 semester hours required, five may be in a combination of classes, he

Pacific Junction To Start Laying Gas Mains in Streets

Preliminary work started today on the installation of gas mains on the streets of Pacific Junction to bring residents of that place connections with one of the large gas companies of Indiana fields.

The announcement was made by Jack Wilson, Glenwood, district manager of the Iowa Power and Light Co., who said that the Russell Construction Co. of Morgansfield, Ky., was ready and anxious to get the Pacific Junction job started. This firm handled the installation of gas lines in Malvern and Emerson, recently completed an extensive installation for the Southern Indiana Gas & Electric Co

The inital work at the Junction calls for the construction of a pressure regulating station adjacent to the pipe lines, to cut the gas pressure down from 600 pounds to about 50 pounds. The gas is then reduced again for suitable pressure for city distribution.
