

Early American racing was under match conditions, the owners putting up "so much a side" in money, cotton, to-bacco, land, or even the horse. The track was a field, a road, or perhaps the main street in town which in some cities, Philadelphia, fon instance, is still known as Race Street. Later, when tracks were laid out and meetings organized, prize money, in races other than Sweepstakes, was hung in a purse in the winner's

Owners still run for each Owners still run for each other's money in Stakes races, putting up fees for each entry, but today the racetrack adds something to the pot. Dairy Meeting at Humboldt Nov. 25

Dairy farmers in the counties of Pawnee, Richardson, Nemaha, Johnson, Otoe and Cass will hold a district dairy meeting in the City Auditorium at Humboldt, Nov. 25 at 2 p.m.

Each year the American Dairy Association of Nebraska holds district meetings in each of 13 districts. The meetings are held for the purpose of reporting to dairy farmers the program of the American Dairy Association, both nationally and on the state level. Each year approximately one-third of the directors' terms expire and these need to be re-elected or new directors elected to fill these positions.
