The Growing States

The latest Washington estimate on growth for the current decade — the sixties — shows that the western states and Alaska, and a few other states, will experience rapid growth in the next ten years.

The fastest growing state in the United States is expected to be Florida, which now has a population of 4,930,000, and which is expected to have a population of 7,631,000 by 1970. This is a gain of 54.8 percent.

Alaska is expected to grow at a rate of better than 50 percent, and Arizona is expected to grow at a rate of approximately 47 percent. These states are expected to be the leaders. But others also will grow rapidly.

California is expected to grow by 37 percent, Hawaii by 36 percent, Nevada by 35 percent, New Mexico by 34 percent, Colorado by 25 percent, Connecticut by 26 percent, Delaware by 27 percent, Maryland by 26 percent, New Jersey by 24 percent and Utah by 25 percent.

Other states which are expected to grow faster than average are Idaho, Indiana, Louisiana, Ohio, Oregon, Texas, Virginia and Washington.

Only two states are expected to lose population — Arkansas and North Dakota.

States which are expected to grow very much slower than the national average include: Alabama, Iowa, Kentucky, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, New York, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Vermont, and West Virginia.

Aviation Hi-Lites

SAC HDJ — As radio operator on a B-29 leading a group formation to attack Koriyama, Japan, SSgt Henry E. Erwin was charged with the additional duty of dropping phosphorous smoke bombs to aid in assembling the group at the launching point.

One of the phosphorous bombs proved faulty and exploded in the launching chute. It shot back into the interior of the aircraft, striking Sergeant Erwin in the face. The burning phosphorous obliterated his nose and blinded him. Smoke filled the bomber, obscuring the vision of the pilot.

Sergeant Erwin realized that the aircraft and crew would be lost if the burning bomb remained in the plane. He picked it up and, feeling his way instinctively, crawled around the gun turret and headed for the copilot's window.

The navigator's table obstructed his passage, and he grasped the burning bomb between his forearm and body, unlatched the spring lock and raised the table. Struggling through the narrow passage, he stumbled forward into the smoke-filled pilot's compartment.

Groping with his burning hands, he located the window and threw the bomb out. Completely aflame, he fell to the floor. The smoke cleared, and the pilot, at 300 feet, pulled the plane out of its dive.

Sergeant Erwin was awarded the Medal of Honor — the only enlisted Air Force man to win the top medal in the Pacific phase of World War II.

Sarpy County is Still Wrestling With Commissioners

Sarpy County is still in the throes of getting their county divided into five commissioner districts instead of the present three districts. The courts have sustained the vote to create the five districts and the special committee of three officials have the task of figuring what district will be without a commissioner for the next two years.

In the new redistricting plan as adopted, Commissioners Jacob Schram of Gretna and Harold Ely of Papillion find themselves in the same district. Both men have two years to serve on their term.

William J. Sullivan was elected in November for a four year term, in and is in the fourth district.

That leaves districts one, two and three without representation. District one is Offutt, LaPlatte and Bellevue ward three. No. two is the rest of Bellevue. No. three is Avery, Highland and most of Bellevue second ward.

The appointment of two commissioners to serve for two years from these districts will be made by the committee composed of the county treasurer, county clerk, county attorney.

Growing Fruits, Vegetables Topic At Omaha Dec. 14

OMAHA — Growing fruits and vegetables will be discussed at the annual meeting of the Nebraska Horticultural Society here Dec. 14.

The program begins at 10 a.m. Dec. 14 in the Douglas County Extension Office located at Ak-Sar-Ben Field, according to Wayne Whitney Society secretary and Extension horticulturist at the University of Nebraska.

The discussion on fruits will include peaches, small fruits, and apples. Topics on the vegetable portion of the program will include pre-cooling, weed control and cultural practices.

All fruit and vegetable growers are welcomed to attend the meeting which will include election of officers for the coming year. Carl Anderson, Omaha, is president of the Society.

Civil Defense Day Dec. 7

Wednesday, Dec. 7, has been designated as National Civil Defense Day, by Civil Defense Mobilization Director Leo A. Hoegh.

Keynoting its theme, "Peace Through Preparedness," Director Hoegh urged home-owners to build fallout shelters.

"Fallout shelter protection for every American — in his home, on his farm, in his office, in his plant — is the best single defense measure for the greatest number of our people," he declared.

Director Hoegh points out that thousands of American home-owners are building their fallout shelters, but others hesitate to do so, for one reason or another.

"It is those citizens that this Civil Defense Day message is aimed," Director Hoegh said. "Civil Defense Day is tied in with the observance of Pearl Harbor in 1941 should spur all Americans to be prepared with home shelters. The price of peace, it has been said, is eternal vigilance."

The construction of fallout shelters to ensure the survival of millions of Americans if nuclear attack comes, is reduced to practicable steps in OGDMS 32-page illustrated booklet, "Family Fallout Shelter." The booklet describes plans for simple, inexpensive shelters, and details the emergency food, water, and other essential supplies for two weeks which should be stored in every home. A battery radio is an essential item for survival because civilians would need it to listen for Civil Defense emergency instructions via CONELRAD at 640 or 1240 on the dial.

The booklet can be obtained free from State or local civil defense offices, or by writing to Box Home Shelter, OGDMS, Battle Creek, Mich.
