Foreclosures on Decline, USDA Says

Farm real estate mortgage foreclosures continue to be rare, according to USDA agricultural economist.

Foreclosures at the rate of 1.6 per 1,000 farms in the first part of 1960 were the same as a year earlier and close to the record of 1.0 per 1,000 in 1947. Distressed transfers dropped to an estimated 6,500, down 100 from the 1950 estimate. Court-directed foreclosures were probably fewer than 1,000.

In all, about 190,000 land tracts and farms changed hands at a rate (47.1 per 1,000 farms) slightly less than a year earlier. The trend has been downward since 1946-47, except for two short periods during the Korean War and in 1954-55.

You And The Law

So You Are A Defendant?

Much has been said about the right to bring a lawsuit, but what about those who are sued? Notice and a right to be heard are necessary before a person may be deprived of any right or property. If a lawsuit is brought against you, the first notice you will receive is a summons. This states who is suing you and why.

The amount of the damages or the remedy sought will be stated in the summons. The court in which the suit is brought is named. The summons must be served, and the officer serving the summons writes on the summons how and when he served it on you.

The summons states that you must answer by a certain day. This is important. You have a right to be heard, but if you ignore the summons a default judgment may be taken against you. By failing to answer you may waive your right to be heard.

To start a lawsuit, a plaintiff must file a petition. This must state a valid reason. An answer either denies the truth of what the plaintiff says or states facts which show a defense. Often a plaintiff thinks that he has a good action when he really does not.

Often his facts are not clearly stated and it is hard to answer. He may be forced by motion to restate his action and to state his facts clearly.

One common tool of a lawyer is called a demurrer. This is used when the petition of the plaintiff is defective. A plaintiff, who says he has been damaged but doesn't state how, has not pleaded a good cause of action. The defendant demurs. For this purpose only, the facts stated in the petition are true. If the demurrer is sustained, the plaintiff must either amend his petition or his action will be dismissed. If the demurrer is overruled then the defendant can answer.

A defendant is not in default if these pleadings are filed by answer day. You may wonder why these motions are needed. A person being sued should know why. The petition should tell him this.

It should be clear and definite so that he can defend himself. These motions are to force him to be clear and definite.

Innovations for Market Hog Show

Omaha — The third annual Omaha Market Hog Show, to be held at the Omaha Stock Yards Feb. 11, 1961, will feature a pair of innovations, according to Show Chairman R. E. Cunningham, secretary of the Omaha Live Stock Exchange.

The big change will be separate divisions of competition for pure bred and crossbred hogs. Entries in each class will compete in their own division right down to the wire; then champions of both classes will go against each other for grand championship of the show.

The second principal innovation in the upcoming Omaha show will be a switch to one weight category—2,000 to 2,400 pounds for the 10-head truck lot entries, and 200 to 240 pounds for the individual hog selected from the trucklot for individual competition. Individuals must come from a 10-head trucklot entry, and as in the 1960 show, must be barrows.

The event is sponsored by Omaha live stock interests and the Extension Services of the University of Nebraska and Iowa State College.

BELIEVING SALESMAN

Ontario, Cal. — Tripping over her son's toy gun, a housewife picked it up and held it in her hand as she answered the doorbell.

The salesman she confronted turned pale and ran, vaulting a 3-foot fence.

Her son, acting on her complaint that she was getting annoyed by peddlers, put up a sign on the front door which read:

"We shoot every third salesman, and the second one just left."

A Classified Ad in The Journal cost as little as 50 cents.

Most of State's Wheat 4 Varieties

LINCOLN—Most of the wheat acreage in Nebraska is planted to four varieties—Cheyenne, Bison, Pawnee and Nebred.

"These four varieties were planted on 85 per cent of the total wheat acreage in Nebraska," reports Duane Foote, secretary of the Nebraska Crop Improvement Association at the College of Agriculture. "These facts are based on samples of wheat collected in 16 counties this fall."

"Nearly 90 per cent of the wheat acreage is planted to wheat varieties recommended by the Nebraska Agricultural Experiment Station. These varieties have good milling and baking characteristics and perform well in the field," Foote said.

"Cheyenne has replaced Pawnee as the most popular wheat variety in the state. This variety was planted on 25.7 per cent of the total acreage compared to about 23 per cent of the acreage a year ago. It seems to be a very popular variety in western Nebraska."

"Bison ranked second and continued to show a definite increase as it has each year since being recommended in Nebraska. It was planted on 21.9 per cent of the acreage compared to about 15 per cent of the acreage a year ago. Bison seems to be particularly well accepted in south central and southwestern Nebraska," Foote said.

"Pawnee, the leading variety a year ago, rated a close third being planted on 21.8 per cent of the acreage compared to 30 per cent a year ago. However, Pawnee continued to be the predominant variety in eastern Nebraska."

The acreage planted with Nebred declined from 18 per cent a year ago to 15 per cent this year. Occupying small acreages in the state were Ponca, Wichita, and Turkey. Of these four varieties, Ponca was the only one recommended for Nebraska.

District Court

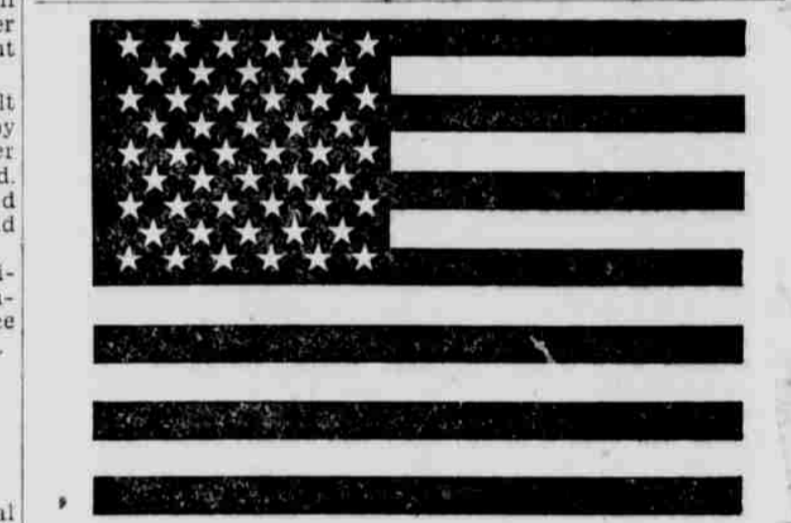

These cases were filed recently in District Court here:

Judy Tucker vs. Dala H. Tucker, reciprocal enforcement of Support Act; Evelyn Cox vs. Rolland Cox, divorce.

Ponca was seeded on 2.8 per cent of the acreage compared to 7 per cent of the acreage a year ago.

The new varieties—Warrior, Omaha and Ottawa — were planted on only a small percentage of the total acreage, but they are expected to increase considerably in another year.
