Pioneers Win, 59-39, Over Devils

Crete High is here Saturday for the second straight Twin Rivers Conference basketball game for Plattsmouth High School.

Games are at 6:30 and 8 p.m. Tuesday night, Plattsmouth suffered a 59-39 loss to fast, aggressive Nebraska City in a game played at Peru State College.

Plattsmouth had a fatal first quarter in which the Blue Devils were outscored, 19-3, and then struggled manfully and on fairly even terms the rest of the game.

Coach John Adkins said he thought his team played well, despite the 20-point difference in score.

Ed Romjue of the Pioneers killed Plattsmouth in the opening eight minutes. He hit just one basket but converted six of eight free throws as he was fouled out on drives.

Meanwhile, Plattsmouth got only a basket by Denny Campbell and a free throw by Rog Beveridge in the first quarter.

The Devils won the two middle quarters, 15-11 as Campbell got six points and 13-11 as Duane Haith with four and Beverage and Dave Albert with three each led.

Nebraska City returned to dominance in the fourth quarter, winning it 18-8 with John Moore scoring seven of his nine points. Both teams had foul-shooting difficulty, Plattsmouth making 11 of 24 and Nebraska City 17 of 30.

Beverage was high scorer for the Devils with 13 and Campbell got 10. Haith did a good job rebounding before fouling out in the fourth quarter.

Romjue got 17 points for Nebraska City, Jim Christensen 14 and Ron Poggmeyer 11.

W. Water, 75-48 Winner, Ranked No. 3 Class C Team

WEEPING WATER — Jim Moore clicked for a season high of 32 points to lead Weeping Water to a 75-48 victory over Tecumseh here Tuesday night.

Weeping Water was ranked third best Class C basketball team in the state by both the Lincoln and Omaha newspapers this week, behind Fullerton and Arlington.

Tuesday night, Weeping Water got off to a 20-7 first-quarter start and never was in difficulty. The lead was 38-22 at halftime and 60-33 at the end of three quarters.

Carl Voyles scored 17 for Weeping Water.

Weeping Water is now 7-1 for the season.

Avoca Wins, Then Loses

AVOCA — Avoca high divided its two latest basketball games, winning from Watson, Mo., 74-42 and bowing to Elmwood, 68-66, in overtime.

Against Watson, Steve Carsten scored 27 points. Avoca led 17-8, 36-18 and 49-27 at the stops.

Avoca won the second team game, 55-11, as Richard Knake was high with 10.

Carsten scored 28 against Elmwood but Gary Clements' 23 and his play in the overtime brought Elmwood an uphill victory.

Avoca was ahead, 47-43, going into the last period of regulation time. Elmwood rallied to tie it at 63, then scored a 5 to 3 overtime advantage.

Elmwood won the "B" game, 50-29, led by Wayne Dunkel's 16. Louis Van Ackern was high for Avoca with nine.

Stockmen Warned About 'Red Nose' Cattle Disease

LINCOLN — Stockmen need to be on the lookout for red nose, an acute disease of cattle that is characterized by symptoms that resemble shipping fever.

While the disease occurs most frequently in feedlot cattle, it also affects all other cattle, according to Dr. E. Crosby Howe, Extension animal hygienist at the University of Nebraska.

The onset of red nose is sudden and progresses quite rapidly through the herd so that usually 80 to 90 per cent of the herd shows some degree of infection.

"Infected animals show lack of appetite, drowsiness, difficult and rapid breathing, and rapid loss of weight through dehydration. In typical cases, the muzzle will be bright red due to hemorrhages under the surface skin. This skin later becomes dark," Dr. Howe explains.

"The discharge from the nose and eyes is clear and stringy, later becoming cloudy and yellowed with pus. The discharge from the nose also may be tinged with blood due to tiny hemorrhages in the mucous membrane lining in the nose and windpipe."

"Red nose is caused by virus. There is no specific treatment, but it can be prevented through vaccination. Your veterinarian can suggest the best nursing and supportive treatment for infected animals in your particular farm or feedlot conditions. The cost of this service will be returned many times over," Dr. Howe points out.

Conservation's Best Practice Is: Grass

LINCOLN — "A relaxation of soil and water conservation efforts to temporarily solve an agricultural surplus problem today would be comparable to sabotage against the America of tomorrow," the president of the Nebraska Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts said here Friday.

Dempsey McNeil, Holdrege, speaking before the Nebraska Agricultural Experiment Workers Conference, likened any stoppage of conservation efforts to "killing the goose that laid the golden egg."

Termining grass "the greatest conservation practice of all," McNeil called for land which is subject to erosion and is still farmed to be retired.

He noted that some cattlemen have "expressed concern that this type of program might cause expansion of the cattle industry." However, he observed that "grass grown on this land is now a potential meat producer, so reduction of grain supplies would probably offset the increased acreage of grass."

He also suggested continuation and expansion of sections of the federal cost-sharing program (ACP) which contribute to soil and water conservation.

"While irrigation is criticized for increasing production and adding to surpluses, it removes one of the great risks in a business which is full of uncertainties," McNeil commented.

"Despite unsuccessful efforts thus far to solve the surplus problem, we must attempt to keep our production up to maintain our income until such a time as someone provides a better answer," he concluded.

What Is Brome Or Bluegrass Pasture Worth?

LINCOLN — If good hay is worth $15 a ton, an average bluegrass pasture should be worth around $2.25 per month for a 1,000 pound cow during the grazing season.

The average bromegrass pasture should be worth around $2.80 per month under the same conditions, reports Dean Brown, Extension farm economist at the University of Nebraska.

"If good hay is worth $20 per ton, paying more than $3 per month for each 1,000 pound cow on average bluegrass pasture in eastern Nebraska would be more costly than feeding hay. This would compare with a charge of $3.80 per head for bromegrass pasture," Brown said.

"A farmer should pay no more than necessary for pasture rental. If the charge for pasture is such that the cost of production is lower than that from feeding hay, the farmer can afford to rent pasture land."

"If the cattle to be grazed weigh more than 1,000 pounds, you should add 10 per cent to the prices above for each 100 pounds of additional body weight. Ten per cent of the cost should be deducted for each 100 pounds of body weight under 1,000 pounds.

"The suggested price comparisons are based upon the assumption that the pasture will not be overstocked," Brown continued. "If it is necessary to provide supplemental roughage to cattle on pasture, then the suggested prices are too high or the pasture is overstocked."

"By the same token, the land owner renting pasture on a per head monthly basis will want to see that the pasture is properly stocked to utilize the forage produced. Overstocking will damage the pasture and reduce its value in future years. Understocking will reduce the rental income in the current year."

Boost Seen for Beautification of Nebraska Communities

LINCOLN — Beautification of Nebraska communities will get an added boost in 1962 through direct financial aid if the 1961 State-wide Beautification Contest proves successful.

That announcement was made here Thursday by the directors of the Nebraska Beautification Contest and Sears-Roebuck and Company.

"The direct financial aid in 1962 would be in the form of 'seed money' to be used for the purchase of ornamental trees, shrubs, and plants. Sears-Roebuck is making award money available for the 1961 contest. If communities show an interest and participate in the 1961 contest, 'seed money' will be made available to augment local beautification plans," said J. P. Plain of Dallas, Texas representing Sears-Roebuck and Co.

The contest will be conducted by a board of directors composed of Mrs. L. J. Irving of Omaha, State Senator Otto Lieber of Lincoln, and Glenn Viehweyer, horticulturalist at the University of Nebraska North Platte Experiment Station. It will be sponsored by the Federated Garden Clubs of Nebraska, the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture and Sears-Roebuck.

Principle aim of the contest is to "encourage group action in community beautification under the leadership of Federated Garden Clubs." Local garden clubs are urged to enlist the aid of civic groups such as chamber of commerce, service clubs and other agencies.

All projects will be evaluated on the basis of total value to the community and state and will be, it is hoped, an important and major element in the horticultural and aesthetic development of Nebraska.

"This is a program that can be valuable to any Nebraska community urban or rural regardless of size. It is a program that can be yours in your own town," said Viehweyer.

A beautification project's permanent value to the community will make up 50 per cent of the total points possible in judging the entries. Judging will be done by a panel of at least three qualified persons under the direction of L. A. Erneron, Lincoln landscape architect.

The contest will include three classifications: Group 1—Garden clubs with 25 or fewer members; Group 2—clubs with at least 26 but not more than 50 members; and group 3—clubs with 51 or more members. Annual awards in each group will consist of cash prizes of $150, $100, $50 and $25 for the first four placings.

Applications for the 1961 contest must be made by March 25, 1961 and actual entries must be submitted by Aug. 1, 1961. Persons seeking additional information should contact local federated garden clubs. Additional information on the contest will be made available at the Community Beautification Conference at the University of Nebraska, Feb. 27-28, 1961.
