NEBRASKA CENTER FOR CONTINUING EDUCATION—Workmen soon will be putting the finishing touches on the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education which opens June 1 on the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture campus. The Nebraska Center, and an integral part of the facility, the Hall of Youth, was planned nearly three years ago when the W. K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek, Mich., contributed $1.5 million and business and personal gifts of Nebraska gave another $1 million for its construction. Some 50 educational conferences, institutes and workshops already have been scheduled to be held in the Nebraska Center. —(College of Agriculture Photo).

Nebraska Center for Continuing Education To Open June 1, 1961

By Jerry Petsche
Assistant Director of Public Relations
University of Nebraska

One of the most important and significant developments in the education of Nebraskans and the people of this Great Plains region will soon become a reality.

The approximate target date for the opening of the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education at University of Nebraska College of Agriculture has been set for June 1.

With the opening of the $2.5 million center, will be the beginning of a concerted effort by the University to provide another service that of continuing education of the state and region's adults and youth.

The Nebraska Center, and an integral part of the facility, the Hall of Youth, was planned nearly three years ago when the W. K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek, Mich., contributed $1.5 million and business and personal gifts of Nebraskans gave another $1 million for its construction.

Dr. Arthur B. Ward, head of conferences and institutes at the University, and Dr. Otto Holberg, head of the Hall of Youth, report the scheduling of more than 50 educational conferences, institutes or workshops. Many more are in the planning stages.

A variety in the kind of groups already scheduled indicates that the Center may be used for almost any educational activity. The Center will host conferences for farmers, ranchers, nursing home operators, experts dealing with electronics in medicine, wildlife specialists, office managers, psychologists, diesel operators, dentists, clergymen, tax accountants, lawyers, scholars, and builders.

The long-term planning at the Center includes workshops and institutes as far away as 1956 which include international sessions involving world personalities.

The four directors of the Nebraska Center (including the Hall of Youth) in addition to Drs. Ward and Holberg are Dr. Knute Broady, director of the University Extension Division (responsible for the over-all operation of the Center) and Martin Kohliligian, manager of housing and food services.

Dr. Holberg, a professor of sociology, is the head of Community Services and will direct the activities in the 8-week Midwest Institute for Youth.

The Hall of Youth will serve the educational needs for Nebraska young people who may not include college in their future plans, according to Chancellor Clifford M. Hardin. The Hall is a unique facility in the United States.

The completion of the Nebraska Center will mark the fifth center built in the United States in coordination with the Kellogg Foundation. In 1959 the University was selected from among 60 major universities in the United States for the location of the educational facility.

Dr. Ward has explained that there are two broad educational areas that he believes will be of help and interest to all adults attending conferences at the Center.

"Take the farmer or rancher, for example," he said. "There will be programs designed to further the liberal education of these men and 'down-to-earth' conferences and institutes designed to show the way in agricultural problem solving."

Typical of the liberally accented approach is the program at the University of Georgia where a series of institutes are held for the farmer on "the life of man."

"Their outstanding program encompasses a series that deals with the economic, social, religious and environmental habits of their fellow man," Ward said.

Of more practical value are the institute conferences and institutes now being conducted on a limited scale at the University.

"In future years we will no doubt be asked by the farmers and ranchers to conduct both kinds of institutes and conferences," he said.

Club News from Weeping Water

WEEPING WATER (Special) — The Opportunity Extension Club met on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. E. Lorenson with Mrs. W. W. Jameson as co-hostess. There were twelve members present and five guests. Mrs. Bert Philpot, Mrs. Mary Domingo, Mrs. Walter Anderson, Miss Clara Fate and Mrs. S. R. Seaver. Mrs. Philpot became a new member.

Mrs. Herbert Peterson read a poem in memory of Mrs. Troy Jewell. Mrs. S. H. Harmon led in the group singing. Mrs. E. E. Lorenson gave reports on several books. Mrs. Ross Kinton and Mrs. Art Barkhurst presented the lesson on "Fabrics and Curtains." The February meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Murray Mutter.

The Third Thursday Club met at the home of Mrs. Jerry McKinstry of Manly. The afternoon was spent socially. The February meeting will be with Mrs. Virgil Wiles.

The Triple-T Dairy Club met on Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Schlueter and family with the fourteen club members present. The families of the club members also attended and there were twenty seven present.

Deanna Bond, president, presided at the meeting. Malcolm Pollard is the leader of this club. The members judged Holstein Dairy cows out of the Hoards Dairyman. Plans were made for a roller skating party.

Mrs. Schlueter and daughters served lunch.

The Feb. 18 meeting will be at the Mark Hohman home.

The Busy Belles 4-H Club organized on Tuesday after school at the home of the leader, Mrs. Clarence Schmadeke. Mrs. William Finley will be the assistant leader.

Girls who are members of the club are Debbie Pilford, Sheri Doyle, Carole Sue Upton, Linda Heneger, Beth Anderson, Dianne Anderson, Barbara Finley, Valerie Friesell, Betty Haines, Diane Patton and Joyce Schmadeke.

The girls will take "Let's Cook" as their project.

Officers elected were president, Debbie Pilford, vice president, Sheri Doyle; secretary, Carole Sue Upton; and reporter, Linda Heneger.

Several of the mothers were present for this meeting.

The Feb. 7 meeting will be at the home of Dianne Anderson.

"I can easily visualize courses and institutes in the areas of taxation, economics and law for the farmer as well as the businessman right along with the how-to-do-it conferences dealing directly with the day-to-day mechanical and agricultural problems," he explained.

Such conferences as those dealing with the probing of back-fat in hogs, new irrigation techniques or problems if diseases in cattle are examples of those that might will be conducted at the Center.

A look at the 1960 conference and institute schedule of topics of special interest to agriculturists will provide a brief picture of what the University of Nebraska is already doing for the farmer and rancher in adult education.

Experts have been obtained to outline special courses in education are welding, legal and business problems, chemicals, economics, beef feeding and management, irrigation, household equipment, gas combustion, farm and dairy sanitation, swine reproduction, beef cattle production, veterinary problems and school lunches.

The farm wife will have the chance to learn what is new in cooking textiles, clothing and decoration. In short, the Nebraska Center can serve to help her in every area of homemaking, from the caring of infants to the beautification of the home.

The examples just cited are primarily of interest to farmers and ranchers. Multiply the broad field of interest by men and women in other walks of life, and you get some idea of the University's massive responsibility. The same can be said of the Hall of Youth.

While certain phases of education programs in the Hall of Youth are conducted by the University in cooperation with existing youth-oriented organizations, others, such as the Midwest Institute for Young Adults, are carried on independently by the University.

Each educational program for youth and young adults at the Hall is built around certain clearly defined objectives. Those of the Midwest Institute, for example, include:

- 1. Provisions for post-high school residential training in such job related fields as business, office work, and agriculture for young men and women whose formal education has ended with high school graduation;
- 2. The development of leadership potential;
- 3. Increasing understanding of opportunities and responsibilities for effective citizenship in our democracy;
- 4. The stimulation of greater interest in cultural and community values;
- 5. Personal counseling assistance for young adults concerning selection of a life work;
- 6. Provision for experience in group living.

SHOOTS MULES FOR DEER

Menomonee, Wis. — Unidentified hunters shot and killed a pair of mules owned by Louis Saizman, a 72-year-old farmer. The hunters made a mistake or else they didn't know what a deer looked like.

Friends, neighbors, and others, including hunters who lived some distance away, heard of Saizman's hard luck and contributed $400 to buy him two more mules.
