Dick Johnson told about a 1961 model sports car, drew the car and had everyone in the class, including the teacher, draw one like it.

Gary French explained the workings of three kinds of jet engines, showed drawings of each.

Steve Timm told how to clean, oil, disassemble and assemble a rifle.

Eddie Frazier explained how to construct and wire a "pump lamp."

Marlene Johnson and Sandra Hamilton each had a demonstration on making cookies, including baking. They distributed samples of cookies they'd made ahead of time, too.

Bill Thompson played a clarinet and told of the technique.

In another demonstration, each class member was required to take part by making a cookie, accomplished by use of a frypan brought to class.

Some of the other subjects for speeches were: parts of the ear, sling shot, hair style, model plane, judging cattle, "free throws can win a ball game" (with classroom constructed hoops), free hand drawing of posters, parsing, egg shell vase, math lesson, cleaning a microscope, archery lesson, and post-attraction.

There was almost no limit to the range of subjects which could be used.

The "almost" being the teacher's ruling: "No animals!" Those who had a subject dealing with animals had to use pictures or drawings.

Speech Class

unique classroom assignments under direction of Mrs. Judith Westerbuhr, speech instructor.

The assignment was to make explanatory speeches to be given as class demonstrations and lectures.

There was no dodging the assignments and once they were started they turned out to be a lot of fun and a valuable experience.

Ken Zimmer, tabbed by Mrs. Westerbuhr as the 1961 Cave Man, told about a cave he had dug near his home using a hatchet and trenching tool. He used a scale drawing of the cave in his how-to-do-it lecture.

Pat Jordan, who once was taught the hula by a well known professional hula dancer in Hawaii, provided one of the novel demonstrations. Her father's Air Force assignment took the family to Hawaii.

Pat O'Farrell showed her class family movies taken in Portugal where her father was stationed and displayed dolls of foreign countries in authentic native costume.

Dick Johnson told about a 1961 model sports car, drew the car and had everyone in the class, including the teacher, draw one like it.

Style Show

admission charge, refreshments will be served, and door prizes will be awarded.

The date to remember is Thursday, March 16, and the doors to the high school auditorium will open at 7 p.m., and the Style Show will begin at 8 p.m.

The Women's Division of the Chamber of Commerce in conjunction with the Retail Committee of the Chamber is sponsoring the event.

"Both men's and women's clothing will be modeled—so the men of the city will not want to miss the style show," planners advise.

Those who will provide part of the entertainment for the evening are also perfecting their numbers. The following will provide the entertainment for the Paris Panorama: Theresa Engelkemier of near Louisville, Susan Rouse of Plattsmouth, and the Plattsmouth High School Boys Quartet of Tim Fischer, Tom Smith, Larry Toothacker and Albert Wetenkamp.
