'North to Alaska' At Cass Theater Is Action Riot
With public curiosity at high pitch these days on every aspect of life in our 49th state, the new 20th Century-Fox Cinemascope DeLuxe Color epic, "North to Alaska," reaches audiences at a timely moment in our history.
The film plays Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, April 2-4, at Cass Theater here. It's a fast-paced action drama of gold-rush days, claim-jumpers, confidence men and lusty romance on the roaring frontier of Nome, brings to the screen a roster of top stars including John Wayne, Stewart Granger, Ernie Kovacs, Fabian and the lovely French newcomer Capucine.
It's the year 1900, and strike-it-rich excitement sparks the atmosphere in the dance-hall and gold-buying bank at Nome as brash Sam McCord (John Wayne) and his partner George Pratt (Stewart Granger) exchange gold dust for $100,000 in bills. Sam is off to Seattle to buy mining machinery and bring back George's fiancée.
To Sam's consternation he finds the girl married to somebody else, and, in an effort to save his partner from heart-break, decides to pick up a curvaceous beauty named Michelle (Capucine) in a Seattle honky-tonk and bring her back to Nome as a substitute bride-to-be.
