Custom feed yard feeds
Purina for fast gains

String of 876 Oklahoma steers average 3.24 pounds per day in Nebraska feed yards

Carlton Noyes, Valley, Nebraska, with some of the 876 steers that averaged 3.24 pounds per day gain in his custom feedlot.

Three pounds average daily gain is a fine record on any bunch of cattle. But a string of 876 Oklahoma steers fed on Purina in the Noyes Feedlot, Valley, Nebraska, averaged 3.24 pounds per day at an average feed cost of 18.7¢ per pound of gain, payweight to payweight. The steers went into the lot at 900 pounds and were marketed at 1,365 pounds. In spite of their heavy weight, the steers averaged a pound of beef for 9.6 pounds of feed.

The man who fed the cattle on a custom basis was young Carlton Noyes who feeds 3,000 to 4,000 head of cattle in his commercial yards in the heart of the heavy cattle feeding area near the Omaha market.

"Since I feed on a daily cost per head, my business depends on satisfied customers," said Noyes. "The owner judges our performance by the way the cattle are doing and the cost per pound of gain. I have found that Purina Steer Fatena with stilbestrol makes satisfied customers." Other recent bunches of cattle, lighter in weight, have averaged as much as 3.85 pounds and 3.74 pounds with feed costs running slightly over 16¢ per pound including yardage and veterinary fees.

Carlton Noyes feeds Purina for the results he gets. Why don't you try research-approved Purina Steer Fatena on your next bunch of cattle?

NEW! How to grow
big fish fast—

New Purina Farm Pond Fish Chow helps grow big sporting fish right in your own farm pond. A supplemental feed for catfish, bluegill (bream), crappie, buffalo and minnows, Fish Chow compares to the grain ration you feed to livestock and poultry while they are on pasture. Bass will grow faster, too, because they feed on the well-nourished bluegills.

Purina Fish Chow should be fed regularly at the same feeding locations (2 per acre pond) 6 days a week while the water temperature is above 55° F. Feed all the fish will take readily, but start slow; it may take two weeks to train the fish to the feeding area. A well-stocked half-acre pond can be fed for maximum fish growth for as low as $3.00 per month.

Purina Farm Pond Fish Chow is now available. Buy it... feed it... and tangle with pleasure as you reel in the big ones from your own farm pond.
