Manpower Problem Involves 'Quality'

BOZEMAN, Mont. — The manpower problem between now and 1970 is one of quality rather than quantity, a Federal Extension Service official told members of the Great Plains Agricultural Council here.

Karl Shoemaker, chief of the general economics and sociology branch of FES, spoke on "More Effective Use of Manpower." In 1970, he said, the nation will need 40 per cent more professional and technical people than were employed in 1960. This group will command the highest income and at the same time will have the greatest job opportunities.

Other areas of employment where demands will be heavy include proprietors and managers, clerical and sales people, skilled craftsmen and service workers. Smaller increases are indicated for semi-skilled workers and the need for unskilled labor will not increase and may actually decline, Shoemaker said.

With farms becoming fewer but larger and more mechanized, farm boys will find fewer satisfactory opportunities to stay in farming. Nevertheless, for young people who wish to stay in the agricultural field, the businesses, industries, and services that are a part of modern agriculture offer wide opportunities for careers.

Young people raised on farms, he said, need to be fully conscious of these trends and the growing trend in demand for their services in other areas before they finally decided what vocation to prepare for and what schooling and training they will need if they are to qualify for good, high-paying jobs.

What's Wheat Referendum All About?

LINCOLN—Some of the main points farmers will need to consider in the August 24 Wheat Referendum were listed this week by Everett E. Peterson, Extension farm economist at the University of Nebraska.

He explained that the wheat stabilization program signed by President Kennedy calls for a 10 per cent nationwide cut in wheat acreage allotments for the 1962 crop.

Wheat farmers will be voting "yes" or "no" on marketing quotas for their 1962 crop. Two-thirds of the voters must approve before these quotas go into effect. If the vote on August 24 says "yes" to quotas, Peterson said cooperating wheat growers will be eligible for 1962 wheat price supports expected to be around $2 a bushel, which would be 83 1/2 per cent of parity. The 1961 support price is $1.79 or 75 per cent of parity. Those who do not cooperate will be subject to mar-farmers who comply with their acreage allotments.

The new wheat stabilization program, with marketing quotas, is intended to reduce Government stocks of wheat, now at 1 1/4 billion bushels, by about 100 million bushels next year, the University specialist said. Eligible farmers throughout the 39-state commercial wheat area will be voting at local polls August 24. The County ASC committee is in charge of the referendum locally.

It's the unity in a community that gets the job done

The job in Oshkosh... A GROWING INDUSTRY

Community-wide effort, as demonstrated by the citizens of Oshkosh, proves that UNITY in the community produces progress.

Attracted by this unified effort, the MIDWEC CORPORATION, manufacturers of electronic equipment, located a plant in Oshkosh. It began operations about a year ago and now employs approximately 34 people.

Another factor that figured in the Midwec decision to locate in Oshkosh, according to company officials, was the availability of a dependable supply of low-cost electricity.

Interested in the growth and development of each of the 355 communities it serves, and of the state as a whole, Consumers Public Power District makes available every electrical power need for industry... for business... for the farm... and for the home.
