Out-Sized Cabbages and Sweet Taters Raised Here

The Fred Drapers don't know what their secret is, or at any rate they aren't telling how they raised cabbages ranging in weight from 13 to 17 pounds this year.

The champion in the photograph weighed 17 pounds and had measurements of 13 inches in diameter and 42 inches in circumference when Mrs. Draper picked it on Sept. 20.

They'd bought ordinary cabbage plants at a local market and planted them in mid-June. Mother Nature took over.

In all, they had 8 to 10 cabbages of the king size.

Sweet potatoes in their garden were bent on enormity, too. Mrs. Draper says they got so big her husband broke a potato fork getting them out of the ground.

Three taters were all you'd want to hold at once, she said. They sold for 25 cents apiece.

About the secret of raising big garden produce: Mrs. Draper said they didn't do anything special except for using some manure from the Sale Barn for fertilizer.
