

Biggest Test of Season Awaits Blue Devils Wednesday Night

Despite a school holiday, earned for students of the high school and junior high by Plattsmouth's Blue Devils in their brilliant 19-12 win over Bellevue Friday night, work continued today for the squad in preparation for its biggest test of the season.

Nebraska City, undefeated in seven games and boasting its best team in several years, comes in Wednesday night for a Twin Rivers Conference game.

Game time is 7:30. The contest will continue Plattsmouth's role of playing almost each successive week against a still tougher opponent. This rigorous role has agreed with Coach Norris Hale's Devils.

They hit their peak for several seasons Friday night when they beat down a good and determined Bellevue team. For the Devils it was a case of success through greater determination.

This morning, Hale praised his entire team for its performance against Bellevue.

He cited as turning points his team's ability to stop the Chiefs' rushes for extra points, the well-executed play that brought the decisive touchdown and a key pass that set up the first score.

Hale singled out Al Konfrst, Roger Beverage, Corky Adkins and Bill Nettelman for outstanding defensive play and Dave Nettelman and Jack Scott for performances on offense.

Wednesday night, Nebr. City will be trying to get its fourth straight Twin Rivers Conference win and an unblemished record in the conference.

Plattsmouth will be after its second conference win in four games.

Plattsmouth's major problem will be to contain one of the better high school backs in Nebraska, Ron Poggemeyer who runs and passes with equal skill and a good, strong line led by tackles weighing 223 and 180.

Poggemeyer Friday night scored two touchdowns and passed for one as his team beat Falls City.

The season records: Nebraska City—has defeated Tekamah, 20-7; Falls City, 12-0; Omaha Ryan, 18-13; Fairbury, 19-13; Crete, 31-13; Beatrice, 26-0; and Falls City, 47-22.

Plattsmouth—has defeated Tekamah, 20-7; Falls City, 12-7; and Bellevue, 19-12; and lost to Crete, 6-20; Beatrice, 7-9; and Ashland, 6-7.

Here Friday night, Plattsmouth's dogged defense preserved a victory in the face of a

TD BOUND—Plattsmouth's Dave Nettelman (19) eludes a desperation grab by Woody Dismuke of Bellevue enroute to the first touchdown in Friday night's game here. Other scores for Plattsmouth were by Jack Scott on a pass from Nettelman and by defensive guard Carl Ahaus on a pass interception.

Don Bell Fires Record 31 at CC

Don Bell of Denver Saturday set a course record 31 at the Plattsmouth Country Club, taking one stroke off the previous record held jointly by Tony Suduth of Plattsmouth and Ray Wooster of Omaha, both club members.

Co-incidentally, Wooster shot another 32 Saturday. Bell, golfing with James Begley parred six holes and got birdies on three.

One of Nebraska's better amateur golfers while he lived here, Bell has been in Denver several years. He is the son-in-law of W. C. Soennichsen and was in the grocery department of Soennichsen's while here.

Bell played in a foursome Friday and had rounds of 35 and 37. His record-setting card: Par 433 434 444-34 Bell 433 434 343-31

On third and nine from the Bellevue 49, Dave Nettelman hit Scott in the right flat with a short pass. Scott, who is a sprinter in track, got some good blocking to angle across the field and outspired the secondary to score.

The all-important extra point was a beauty. Scott failed a place-kick, then passed to Nettelman along in the end zone.

Bellevue got back into the game with seven minutes left with a 64-yard drive for a score.

Plattsmouth stopped the rush for point. A bad kick got the Devils into trouble after their next series. Bellevue recovered the ball on the Plattsmouth 12 with 4:12 to play.

Two rushes gained nothing but Hallgren hit Hell with a scoring pass.

It became 13-12 and Devil supporters trembled. But, Konfrst broke through to stop Sanderson behind the line on the point try.

The game wasn't over. Bellevue's passers began and they continued to be a threat until Ahaus made his interception and touchdown with 50 seconds left.

There'll be a lot more football here Wednesday night.

Archers To Hang Bows Up Saturday

LINCOLN—Archers will hang up their bows Saturday, October 28, on the first lap of the most successful bow and arrow deer hunting since the sport was launched in Nebraska in 1955.

Last week, 30 deer were added to the season's kill to date, bringing the five-week score to 142.

Duck Hunters May Have Early Success

LINCOLN—Duck hunters will take to their blinds at noon, Saturday, Oct. 28, with a leaner bag limit but some hope of early hunting success.

Although production in the prairie pothole region in the Canadian provinces is far below normal, there may be some good early shooting as flights of northern mallards go through. The season's opening was set to take advantage of this northern flight.

Too, generally 60 per cent or more of Nebraska's duck harvest is mallards.

And if Nebraska's weather holds, there should be some local ducks for early shooting. The state's waterfowl production was just shy of last year's figures but still above the five-year average.

Blue-winged teal, however, one of the big producers in Nebraska, have already departed. Some green-wing and baldpates have moved into the state.

Because of the greatly reduced populations, duck hunters are limited to a daily bag of two and possession of four during the 40-day season. Duck bag and possession limit may not include more than one wood duck and one hooded merganser. Closed season on canvasback and red-head.

While the duck picture is not bright, goose hunting is more encouraging, with good results on snows, blues, and small Canada-type geese reported on the Missouri in the Gavin's Point and South Sioux area in recent days.

To Nebraskans...

... a glass of beer is many things

Nebraska is one of the great hunting areas of our nation. Here the sportsman can take his choice of deer, antelope, pheasant, ducks, geese, quail. Hunting plays a part in the lives of many Nebraskans, and is a symbol of good living. So too is a glass of good, refreshing beer.

Beer stands for the good life, sociability and friendliness. But even more, it's an example of Nebraskans political freedoms—the freedom of choice. For here a man can choose between a cooling glass of beer—or a warming cup of coffee. It's a right that should belong to every man—everywhere.
