Mixed Start for Stock This Week At Omaha Market

Mixed trends marked opening livestock trade this week at Omaha.

Fat cattle were steady to lower, feeders steady, hogs higher and fat lambs firm to higher. Slaughter steers and yearlings were steady to 25c lower, heifers steady to weak. Better steers sold to $26.25 and $26.50, latter for weights from 1150-1250; heifers weighing 995 reached $26.15, none in the run matching last week's at $26.60, highest for heifers since last March. Other steers, yearlings and heifers Monday ranged from $23.50-$26, palmer cattle $23 down. Cows sold steady, bulk $112-$116.

Choice feeder steers weighing 842 sold at $24, comparable steer calves weighing 458 at $31. The run also included 570-pound stock steers at $27, stock heifers at $24.50, and heifer calves at $26-$27. Butcher hogs were 25 to mostly 50c higher, 190 to 300 pounders $15.75-$18, top $18.15 sparingly. Sows advanced 25-50c, bracketing 270-600's at $13.50-$15.50, few under $13.75. Fat lambs sold strong to 25c higher, woolled to $17.75, shorn to $16.75.

Among recent sales at Omaha for shippers from Cass County: Harry Kasten, 19 heifers, wt. 1002, $25. Ted Wilson, 27 hogs, wt. 227, $17.75. Lee Gabel, 330 hogs, wt. 217, $18.15.

Nebraska 'Welfare Return' For Past Year Described

In 1961, Nebraska citizens drew a sizable return on their investment in the Federal Government through services to advance health, improve education for their children, and broaden economic security.

The many kinds of help to people administered by the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare are directed in this area by James W. Doarn, the Department's regional director for Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, North Dakota, South Dakota, and Minnesota.

In reviewing the Department's activities, Mr. Doarn stated: "A development of historic importance in the welfare field occurred on December 11, when the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, Abraham Ribicoff, announced the first phase of a program to revitalize the Federal-State welfare activities."

Ten administrative actions ordered by Secretary Ribicoff, Mr. Doarn said, have two objectives: To help people on public assistance assume useful roles in society by achieving self-support and independence, and to eliminate whatever abuses have crept into the welfare program since it began a quarter century ago. New importance will be attached to services for the entire family to help them become self-supporting.

To emphasize this approach, the name of the Federal Bureau of Public Assistance has been changed to the Bureau of Family Services.

Of the programs in operation in Nebraska, Mr. Doarn cited the following, pointing out that the figures cover calendar year 1961. Where final figures are not yet available, estimates have been made.

During the year 14,212 men and women over age 65 received public assistance payments amounting to $13,142,000. Under the aid to dependent children program, 12,283 children and their mothers or caretakers received a total of $4,457,000. Payments totaling $1,938,900 were made to 2,164 permanently disabled persons, and $874,000 to 762 blind persons.

Under new amendments to the law, Federal aid was available for the first time in 1961 to dependent children of unemployed parents and to States to help pay for foster family care for homes because parents failed to provide properly for them.

Social Security
During the year 113,500 retired workers and their dependents received a total of $85,656,000 in social security benefits, and 25,000 widows and children of deceased workers received a yearly total of $17,376,000. Disability benefits totaling $3,900,000 a year were made to 5,000 men and women and their dependents.

The 1961 amendments to the Social Security Act allow optional retirement for men at age 62, increase the minimum insurance benefit paid to retired workers from $33 to $40 per month, relax requirements for insurance eligibility, and increase benefits paid aged widows by 10 percent. The retirement test was modified so that retired workers may increase their earnings on jobs and have less of their social security payments withheld.

Education
The Federal Government provides direct aid for school districts in which enrollment has increased because of Federal activity. During the year, eligible school districts in Nebraska received grants of $2,041,644 for operation of the schools, including teachers' salaries, and $870,745 for school construction.

Congress extended this program for 2 years, beginning July 1, 1961. During this time over $477 million will be available to help eligible school districts.

Congress also extended the National Defense Education Act for 2 years. During the year 2,003 students in Nebraska attended college with the help of money borrowed under the student loan program. Altogether, $747,132 was granted institutions of higher learning for this program.

Altogether, the Federal Government contributed $5,504,888 to help improve education and educational opportunities in Nebraska.

Health
A variety of new approaches to better care for the chronically ill and aged will be made possible through the Community Facilities and Health Services Act of 1961. The Act authorizes grants to community agencies to develop new and improved home nursing, home care, and other out-of-hospital services. The Act also raises the ceiling for grants to the States for the construction of nursing homes from $10 million to $20 million annually. Under the Hill-Burton program, 8 hospitals, nursing homes, and other facilities in Nebraska were awarded $1,984,000 in Federal funds for construction. Their total cost is $9,601,000.

The Federal Water Pollution Control Amendments of 1961 provide the basis for a greatly stepped-up program of waste treatment works construction and broadens the Federal Government's enforcement powers.

During the year 18 grants totaling $942,175.33 were awarded in 18 States for the construction of 18 waste treatment works. The estimated cost of these projects is $3,336,952.

During 1961 grants amounting to $301,583 were made to Nebraska to strengthen health programs, general health programs, mental health, cancer, heart disease, and tuberculosis control, and for the training of professional nurses.

The National Institutes of Health, principal research arm of the Public Health Service, awarded $1,301,916 for 80 research projects in Nebraska. Fellowships totaling $37,172 were awarded to 7 fellows in 2 institutions, and grants of $876,597 were made to 3 institutions for training projects.

Vocational Rehabilitation
During the year the Federal Government granted $376,556 for the basic support of Nebraska's rehabilitation program, and 701 handicapped men and women were successfully rehabilitated and returned to productive employment.

These Sox Report: 'I'm Getting Wet'

WASHINGTON — Wired for sound, a pair of socks can signal the wearer that his feet are wet long before he can feel they're even damp.

A new detector device, called "Aquatek," developed by the U.S. Army Quartermaster Corps, is being used for locating and measuring moisture penetration of leather combat boots undergoing field testing.

Moisture penetration changes the electrical resistance of the sock and the sensitive device instantly "beeps" to tell the soldier that his boot is leaking. Quartermaster Corps scientists can use these test results to improve boot and leather for America's fighting men.

"We are at your side—as before. We shall stay until truly there is good will among men, not walls to divide them. Our pursuit of peace shall continue."
