Dr. Koch To Speak At Landrace Meeting

LINCOLN—Dr. Robert Koch, chairman of the University of Nebraska's Department of Animal Husbandry, has been announced as the principal speaker at the National Landrace Annual Conference banquet here Jan. 26.

Dr. Koch will bring to the swine breed group observations on the swine industry of several European countries gained during a trip abroad in 1961.

The University staff member was one of two persons from the U.S. invited to Germany in September 1961 to attend an international school for scientists in the animal breeding field. He also viewed swine operations in Scotland and Denmark.

Of special interest to Landrace breeders from around the country expected to attend the function will be the portion of Dr. Koch's presentation regarding the swine industry in Denmark. In this Scandinavian country, some 5 per cent of the swine herds are Danish Landrace, bred to meet a definite objective: supplying lean pork for a large English market. Dr. Koch will show slides of European swine breeding stock and of work being carried out at the swine testing stations.
