Red Clover Seed
Nebraska farmers should avoid purchasing European red clover seed.

Red clover seed produced in Europe has consistently proved inferior to seed grown in the U.S.

U. S. Department of Agricultural studies in 12 states showed that fields planted with domestic red clover seed produced 30 per cent more hay than fields planted with foreign seed.

Farmers who need red clover seed this spring should check the origin before they buy. Midland and Kenland varieties of red clover are recommended for Nebraska.

Converting U.S.P. Units

Both U.S.P. (United States Pharmacopoeial) and I. U. (International Units) units of vitamins A and D can be considered the same in balancing a cattle ration which includes commercial feed.

Either U.S.P. or I. U. can be converted to milligram equivalents in carotene for ruminant feeding by dividing by 400 states Paul Guyer, University of Nebraska Extension Animal husbandman.

Carotene for feeding ruminant livestock can be converted to I. U. or U.S.P. units of vitamin A by multiplying the milligrams of carotene by 400.—Clarence Schmadeke, County Extension Agent.

The behavior of some animals belies their reputations. In battle, a wolf will not slay another wolf that offers its neck in a gesture of submission. But a dove, the legendary harbinger of peace, will ruthlessly peck to death a helpless opponent.

Heart Disease Problem Is 'A Big One'

"There are many important health and welfare causes asking for support. Most of us can't give to all. But how can we decide which health appeal merits priority on our gift list for health?"

The Nebraska Heart Association posed that question and these others:

How big is the problem? The heart and blood vessel diseases are the nation's No. 1 enemy, killing 921,540 in 1960 — more than all other causes combined — and afflicting 10 million in the U.S. Lost man-days of production due to these diseases exceed 69 million a year and cost an estimated $1 billion.

What is the program? The Heart Association program provides for research to seek new ways to treat, control and prevent all forms of heart and blood vessel disease; for education through which physicians can learn the latest heart research information and the general public can gain new facts to help protect all hearts; and for community heart services in support of rehabilitation projects, rheumatic fever prevention programs and other essential aids to heart patients and their families.

What progress has been made? More than 50 million Heart Fund dollars have been channeled into research since 1948. These contributions have helped develop new knowledge needed to:

1. make possible the prevention of rheumatic fever and rheumatic heart disease;
2. control high blood pressure;

3. repair damaged heart valves and blood vessels, and correct in-born heart defects;
4. perfect new tools for improved diagnosis, and new drugs to retard blood clotting and prevent repeat heart attacks;
5. help most heart attack victims recover, to return three out of four to productive work, and to reduce or prevent invalidism from strokes through new, effective treatment.

Does the agency have medical approval? Physicians created the Heart Association, and heart specialists now guide and direct its activities with the aid of dedicated laymen.

"We believe that this yardstick measures the importance of the heart disease problem and of the Nebraska Heart Association's fight to control it. It offers a convincing reason why we should "put first things first" and give generously to the 1962 Heart Fund," the association said.

The world's oldest preserved, fully identified ship is Sweden's Vasa. The 1,400-ton armed galleon capsized and sank in Stockholm harbor on the first day of her maiden voyage in 1628. The ship was raised intact in 1961 and will be restored as a historic monument.
