27-Acre City Park Site Being Considered

Option Taken On Lapidus Property

There is a good possibility the City may acquire a 27-acre park site—a piece of property which has been coveted by many here for that purpose for several years.

The site is a tract west of Hillcrest and south of Rubin's Addition which is part of the Erna Lapidus Estate. It is bounded on the west by Maiden Lane and includes the entire area south as far as the east-west line of the fence enclosing the Water Dept. storage tank on Maiden Lane.

Last week, a special committee named by the Chamber of Commerce's Executive Committee obtained an option through the Chamber on behalf of the City to purchase the land for $20,000 from the executive trustee of the Lapidus Estate.

Saturday, the committee of James Begley, Clem Woster and Steve Davis, met with Mayor Roy Moore and the City Park Board (Lloyd Fitch Sr., Chas. Wurga and Glenn Pankonin) to discuss park possibilities.

After viewing the site and pondering the matter, the Park Board said it considers the acreage "ideal" for a City Park and said the matter would be discussed further with the City Council at its regular meeting tonight at 8 at City Hall.

A Park Board spokesman today said in a statement: "The City Park Board met and viewed the proposed area. They feel there is a great need for a park of this size in the City of Plattsmouth, with the idea the present parks can be operated according to schedule."

"The Park Board will meet with the Council tonight to discuss the possibilities of a park of this size."

SITE FOR PARK? — This view taken from atop the City Water Dept. storage tank on Maiden Lane (after Leo Hobman of the Dept. carried the camera up the ladder of the 65-foot tank for a Journal photographer) shows the Lapidus property on which an option was obtained on behalf of the City last week. The Park Board and City Council are expected to discuss possible purchase at tonight's Council meeting. Houses at top left of photo are in Rubin's Addition.

Red Cross Annual Meet June 30 at Weeping Water

The Cass County Chapter of the American Red Cross will hold its meeting June 30 at Domingo's Inn in Weeping Water. The supper meal will be served at 6:30 at $1.25 per plate for adults and 90 cents for children. The business meeting will begin immediately following the meal.

This is a "public meeting" open to all persons interested in keeping a Red Cross Chapter alive in Cass County, officers said today.

Discussion of the various programs of the Red Cross will be held, which include: the blood program, first aid, home nursing, water safety and swimming courses, home service (aid to armed forces, veterans, and dependents), disaster relief and others.

Election of officers for the coming year will also be held. Since those who are preparing the meal wish to know the anticipated attendance, please make reservations for the supper meal with the Chapter Secretary, Jean Schneider, 1615 Valley St. Plattsmouth Phone 2348, by June 27.

Steel Flooring For Bridge Is Co. Experiment

Cass County will install steel flooring on a bridge across Callahan Creek in Commission District 3 as an experiment in bridge maintenance.

A used State bridge will be installed and steel, instead of wooden, flooring will be added.

Commission Chairman Melvin Todd of Union said planking for bridges has long been a major item of maintenance expense. The Commissioners believe steel flooring will be an eventual money-saver, although initial cost is higher.

Todd said, as an example, a county bridge this year had to be re-planked although it was done only a year ago. This is extreme, he said, but usually five to seven years is as long as wooden flooring can be expected to last, while steel flooring which can be covered with earth or asphalt, will last many times as long.

Shirley Hild Attends Workshop

Shirley Hild is one of three instructors from Nebraska presently in Iowa City participating in the fifth annual State University of Iowa two-week workshop, ending June 29.

Forty-one instructors from 19 states, in an area bordered by Washington, Arkansas, Ohio and Michigan, are learning ways the newspaper can be a valuable aid in the classroom of a free society and are becoming acquainted with the production, role, and practices of the daily paper.

The workshop is sponsored by the American Newspaper Publication Association, Social Science Council of the National Education Association, and the State University of Iowa College of Education and School of Journalism.

Featured speakers for the sessions include Richard C. Hottelet, CBS news analyst and commentator; Kenneth S. MacDonaid, editor of the Des Moines Register and Tribune; Jack Wilson, member of Washington Bureau; and Robert Carlson, president of the National Council for Teachers of English. Directing the workshop is James E. Hayes, director of curriculum and research in Burlington, Iowa, public schools.

The high school teachers are attending through sponsorship of their local daily papers. Miss Hild, an English and American history instructor in the Omaha Westside Community Schools, was selected by the Omaha World-Herald.

Runaway Truck Damages Buildings, Cars at Union

A tractor-trailer broke loose from a parked position in Union Friday, headed down grade and struck two cars and their crashed into two businesses.

Driver of the truck was Marvin F. Lorenzen of Walton who was loading eggs onto the truck when it broke loose.

Parked cars belonging to Ruth C. Everett and Will Platte, both of Union, were struck by the trailer and "totally damaged."

The trailer careened down the hill to hit store fronts of the Ed Morris Grocery and Wayne Surface Restaurant, tearing down the fronts of the buildings and causing "heavy damage."

Fortunately, no one was in the parked cars or the fronts of the damaged buildings.

The driver told the Sheriff's Office he had the brakes set, the wheels blocked and the engine running to maintain brake pressure when the trailer broke loose.

Supervisors in Charge of Pool, Play at Garfield

Janice Koslowski and Lau Rene Fulton have been employed by the City Park Board to supervise play at Garfield Park and use of the wading pool there, the Park Board has announced.

Pool hours are 1 to 5 daily but could be extended if usage warrants, the Board said, and asked that a responsible adult accompany each child who patronizes the pool.

Playground equipment and games, the latter to be checked out for use, are available at the park.
