Kids Tagged

ALLIANCE—Antelope kids are being tagged at the Sioux Ordnance Depot near Sidney, according to Harvey Suetsugu, associate biologist of the Game Commission.

The first kid was tagged on June 4, and at that time the technicians witnessed the birth of a vigorous male kid. Since that first day, the Game Commission has tagged 18 kids and some still remain to be tagged.

Peak kidding this year occurred between June 15 and 18, Suetsugu said. At the same time the young are tagged, they are being marked with plastic strips to be used for identification in later studies. The technicians will compare the marked antelope with the unmarked to get a production ratio.

All kids are tagged to give them a permanent record as to when they were born. These tags will be used later in studies on the aging of the animals.

Suetsugu indicated that a total of 97 pronghorn are now on the Sioux Depot, but this figure was before the birth of the kids. An original stock of 27 animals was released on this site in January 1958.

The Sioux Ordnance Depot in Cheyenne County is the only known area in the country where antelope are studied in a protected enclosure. The population study covers 22,500 fenced acres and is a co-operative project between the Commission and the U. S. Army.

Spangler Hurls No-Hit, No-Run Game in County Boys League

Dick Spangler struck out nine and allowed only two baserunners in pitching a no-hit, no-run game for Plattsmouth in the Cass County Boys League Wednesday evening.

Plattsmouth won here over Elmwood, 20-0.

A walked batsman in the second and a runner who got on through an error to lead off the fourth was all the difficulty Spangler had.

His mates supported him with 18 hits as they scored five, two,

Farmers: Consider Hazards Connected with Recreation!

LINCOLN — Since National Farm Safety Week is July 22 through 28, this is an opportune time for Nebraska farmers and ranchers to consider some of the hazards connected with recreation on the farm, the Game Commission reports.

Each year in Nebraska several farm people, mostly youngsters, are lost by drowning in ponds and irrigation canals. Most of these deaths could be prevented with a little caution and the aid of a few safety devices.

Inner tubes with ropes attached should be located near ponds or lakes used for swimming. Long cane poles can also serve the same purpose, and either of the devices could save the life of someone in trouble.

In lakes or ponds used by boaters, precautions should be taken to insure safety.

Now is also a good time to make sure obsolete firearms are made inoperative. Many of these guns sit around for years until a youngster decides they might make a good toy, the Commission warns. Old guns such as Damascus steel-barrel shotguns should never be used with modern high-powered ammunition. All guns should be cleaned and stored out of children's reach. If possible guns should be locked and the ammunition stored in a separate location. Nearly half of the firearm accidents occur in homes.

Youngsters on the farm who find young birds or animals that are presumed lost should be cautioned to leave them alone. Many species of wildlife are subject to diseases such as tularemia and rabies.

Do not let an accident mar your farm recreation, the Commission advises.

Auxiliary Opposes 'Aid to Reds'

The American Legion Auxiliary stands with The American Legion in opposition to the granting of aid to Communist countries, the local unit here says.

Action taken by the Senate to limit such aid has the full approval of both Legion and Auxiliary, a spokeswoman said.

"We believe that any aid to Communist-dominated nations, whether this takes the form of money, machinery or food, strengthens the grip of Communism on those countries and gives Communism greater power in its drive for world conquest. We would like to see foreign aid extended only to countries which show willingness to stand with the United States in all-out support of human freedom."

OFF AND RUNNING by John I. Day

Except for the years when he commanded a PT Boat in the Pacific during World War II, Alfred G. Vanderbilt was always an easy man to locate. Unless there was very pressing business elsewhere he'd be at his barn in the morning, in the paddock before each race and in his box only if he had guests. Today, while he tries to get to the track when he has a horse running, particularly if it is a son or daughter of his great, gray galloper, Native Dancer, (the only horse ever named TRA Champion as a 2-year-old) he is just as apt to be jetting off to Europe, Africa, or Southeast Asia on business for the World Veterans Fund which he heads. Prior to the war, Vanderbilt had also busied himself as President of

RR Devaluing Continues; Killer's Composite Drawn

BY MELVIN PAUL
Statehouse Correspondent

The Nebraska Press Association LINCOLN—The plight of Nebraska railroads became increasingly evident this past week when the State Board of Equalization lowered the valuation of all railroads for six purposes for the fifth straight year.

In a statement released after the valuations were set, Governor Frank Morrison, a board member, said the reductions are a result of "loss of business, deterioration of equipment and difficulties and cost of obtaining adequate financing."

The reduction came with little surprise. Railroads each year are becoming less important property tax contributors to state and local governments due to economic problems and the growth in other types of property.

Railroad valuations have generally reversed the pattern of other utilities such as pipelines, gas, light and telephone companies. Last year these utilities increased 15 per cent in valuation. At the same time the board reduced the values of most smaller railroads 31.2 per cent.

Decreased valuations set for railroads this year: Illinois Central, $36,623; Chicago, Rock Island, and Pacific, $1,662,350; Union Pacific, $45,489,306; Chicago, Burlington, & Quincy, $35,159,890; Chicago and Northwestern, $4,399,599; Missouri Pacific, $1,875,868.

Wabash, $20,515; Atchison, Topeka, & Santa Fe, $9,019; Chicago, Great Western, $177,080; South Omaha Terminal, $45,245; Omaha, Lincoln, & Beatrice, $19,800.

Valuation of the Pullman Company was set by the board at $132,920, or 35 per cent of actual value.

Composite of a Killer

The Nebraska Safety Council has hit on a way to warn motorists of the particular driver who becomes a killer on the highways.

The idea, begun over the Fourth of July holiday period, was to compile a composite of the driver who becomes involved in accidents during a specific period.

The composite for the Fourth was a driver 17 to 24 years old, who drives a car two to six years old, and who has two speeding and two failure to stop or yield violations on his record.

Motorists were warned to watch for and avoid this driver between 5 and 9 p.m.

Similar warnings are expected on holidays in the future.

Manpower Training

A final decision on Nebraska's participation in the Federal

Juvenile Delinquency

In a report to the annual governor's conference held in Hershey, Pa., Governor Frank Morrison has given strong praise to three projects to help combat juvenile delinquency in Nebraska.

Morrison gave particular praise to a special employment program in Lincoln schools, a recreational program for the educable mentally handicapped teenager and young adult in Lincoln, and on the overall progress of the city of Holdrege.

Terminating the programs "unique" to Nebraska, the governor said other states could benefit by adopting similar techniques.

The report Morrison submitted had been prepared for him by the Nebraska Committee for Children and Youth, Steering Committee on Juvenile Delinquency and Crime.

Morrison described the special employment program in Lincoln as intending to serve as "a motivating factor to the underachiever, the prospective school dropout, and the emotionally disturbed."

Although the chief purpose of the program is the development of the individual, vocational training plays a major role, the governor said.

Last year 85 boys and girls were placed in 39 jobs under the program.
