Meisingers Have Lived in Cass County 95 Years

BY RUTH MILLER
Nehawka
Special Correspondent

It was in the 1840's and 1850's that the five Meisinger brothers and two sisters made their way to America, making over 100 years in this country, and, for most of the family, around 95 years in Cass County.

Conrad Meisinger was a boy of nearly seven when his father left their home in Bollstein, Hesse-Darmstadt, Germany in 1846.

George Meisinger arrived in America with $50 dollars and five boys.

Like many of the early German families he settled first in Tazewell County, Ill., and luck was with him. He planed 40 acres of wheat and, with prices at $1.00 a bushel, gleaned 900 bushels that year.

This enabled him to buy a section of land at Eight Mile Grove in 1871 but it was another four years before he brought his family to this community.

Here, too, his son Conrad raised his family, of whom five are living, including Mrs. Anna Meisinger who lives with her son on a farm east of Murray.

Mrs. Meisinger recalls starting to school at the Becker School. This warm summer weather offers a good time to present her rather chilly memory of school days.

The children were at the school when suddenly the blizzard of '88 slapped against the frail walls.

Mrs. Meisinger's oldest brother came for the children but their chances of finding the way home were very slim.

Giving the horses rein, the children huddled together and let the horses pick the way through the fast piling snow. "They knew the way home or we'd never have gotten here," says Mrs. Meisinger.

But I was instinct alone that guided those animals for when they arrived home they found that not only the oldest boys eyes were frozen shut, but the horses' also!

Mrs. Meisinger now lives in the comfortable farm home of her son Alvin. She has five grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

At 85, Anna Meisinger is an alert and cheerful woman with lots of quiet charm. She comes from a family well known all over this county as early and progressive settlers.
