'Labor Seal' Commemorates 80th Anniversary

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The Department of Labor has published a special seal to commemorate its 80th anniversary in 1963.

The seal shows an American eagle, its wings spread wide, holding a badge which carries the wording "50 years of progress." The years 1913 and 1963 are on either side of the eagle. In a semicircle under the eagle are the words "The dignity of labor in a free society," the theme for the anniversary period beginning next March 4. In a semicircle over the eagle is printed "United States Department of Labor."

All publications issued by the Department in 1963 will carry the seal. It will also appear on the Department's stationery and on certificates of appointment being presented to all members of a special anniversary committee established earlier this year by President Kennedy.

The seal will also appear in special window displays and other exhibits staged around the country to observe the event.

The Labor Department was established on March 4, 1913, when President William Howard Taft signed a bill creating the Department "to foster, promote and develop the welfare of the wage earners of the United States, to improve their working conditions and to advance their opportunities for profitable employment."

Nebr.-Developed Corn Flour Being Used in Paper Production

The paper this news release was printed on contains Nebraska corn flour. It was used as an adhesive in the production of the paper. It is a substitute for imported tapioca starch.

The successful use of this dry-milled corn starch in paper production has opened a vast commercial market — a new market — for use of corn, according to Pearl Finigan, director of the State Department of Agriculture.

This new product competes with an imported product — tapioca starch — and has a potential annual use of 150,000 tons.

The Nebraska discovery, dry-milled corn starch, will sell at an equal or lower price and be more uniform in quality than tapioca starch, research tests prove.

Additionally, dry-milled corn starch will find use in lower priced paper products where wet-milled starch has found limited use, due to its cost.

The corn flour has a conservative new market use potential of 136,190 tons a year, scientists at the Institute of Paper Chemistry (Appleton, Wisconsin) estimate.

Additionally, tests using wheat flour are underway to see if this grain can also compete in use for paper production.

All research and tests were part of the Nebraska Department of Agriculture and Inspection's pioneering Agresearch program, one dedicated to finding new uses for farm products.

Truck Owners: It's Time for Tax Installment

District Director of Internal Revenue Richard Vinal reminded truck and bus owners who have elected to pay their Highway Use Tax in installments that Dec. 31 is the due date for the next payment. A notice of payment due is being sent to these taxpayers.

A Form 2290 should be filed on all taxable vehicles by the end of the month following the month they were first used on public highways.

However, liability for Highway Use Tax arises only once each year on each taxable vehicle. Therefore, on second hand trucks or buses acquired, the new owner should check to see if the use tax has already been paid by the previous owner for the current year. If it has, the new owner incurs no liability for tax on his use of such vehicle for that year.

Vinal reminded truck or bus owners who first became liable for the Federal Highway Use Tax in November or who put additional vehicles into operation in November, that returns should be filed for such vehicles by the end of December. The tax may be paid in full by Dec. 31 or in three equal payments by Dec. 31, March 31 and June 30.

Additional information, forms or an instruction booklet may be obtained at any Internal Revenue Office.

Nebr. Willard Wirtz, Secretary of Labor:
"I see no point in spreading the present amount of work. The only thing we can do is to see that there is more work and that the people who are the real manpower potential are used."
