Most Shrubs Need Pruning

LINCOLN—Most older deciduous shrubs need some pruning says Wayne Whitney, University of Nebraska Extension Horticulturist.

He refers to those shrubs which lose their leaves during the winter—such as lilacs, spirea, highbush cranberry and honeysuckle. All shrubs can stand a more severe pruning while they are dormant than during the growing season.

Bridal wreath and honeysuckle are shrubs that can be trimmed to the ground. The entire plant can be sawed off at ground level and it will regrow the following season—a new shrub on the old root. He says there won't be any bloom the first year—just a nice new vigorous shrub.

Shrub height can be reduced by taking out old wood at the base. Leave the tops of the shrub alone as much as possible. Top pruning—cutting the shrub off at the top—encourages more growth on top.

He explains that new shoots will appear where a pruning cut is made. Therefore he advises making cuts where new growth is wanted.

Four different ways to make going more fun than getting there

You can see why one of America's favorite outdoor sports is driving Chevrolet's, with four entirely different kinds of cars to choose from. There's the Jet-smooth Chevrolet, about as luxurious as you can go without going overboard in price; the low-cost Chevy II, a good-looking car that would send any family packing; another family favorite, the sporty Corvair, whose rear-engine traction will make you think that ice and snow are old stuff; and for pure adventure, America's only sports car, Corvette—now in two all-new versions with looks that can stop traffic like a rush-hour blizzard. Picked your favorite already? The next thing is to take the wheel at your Chevrolet dealer's. If that doesn't have you thinking of places to go, maybe you'd rather just have a ball around town!
