She urged the practice of a "Quiet Hour" when communion with God gives us the answer to many questions.

CORN FOR RUSSIANS?

Moscow — Russians are not taking kindly to Premier Khrushchev's campaign to promote corn as human food.

Russians usually turn up their noses at cornflakes. Their idea of a good breakfast is a heaping plate of hot sausages, potatoes and cabbage covered with thick gravy. The gravy is topped with four or five slices of white bread not cornbread!

Khrushchev's argument is that the Americans eat it and they love it.

Hubert M. Humphrey, Senate Democratic leader, "The Republicans indicate they have discovered some miraculous way of cutting the budget. If they come out against people, that's their privilege."
