Broadened-Tax Issue Laid To Rest

BY MELVIN PAUL
Statehouse Correspondent

LINCOLN—The issue of tax broadening has been laid to rest for another two years in Nebraska.

The legislature has killed LB 612 which would have imposed a tax against income to defray the costs of financing state governmental operations.

The vote to kill carried 23-19 but was close enough to give opponents some second thoughts. One of them, Sen. George Spas of Omaha, said the disagreement has so evenly split the senators "that we cannot afford to rest on our oars."

Some of those favoring the income tax measure believe getting such a tax passed in succeeding sessions will be more difficult when the Unicameral gets more representation from the metropolitan areas.

The immediate effect of the income tax rejection apparently will be an effort to hold down the state property tax levy. Some of those most actively supporting a broadened tax base have already said they will vote against any bills which would hike the mill levy for state government support.

Some of those working hardest to get LB 612 killed said an income tax is not necessary at this time. They noted that laws have already been passed to increase the state treasury's income by about $15 for the next biennial period. In addition, they argued, there is a three per cent increase annually in the valuation of taxable property.

Generally, spending bills which will jump the state property tax seem to be in for a rough going in the remaining days of the session.

A measure which would implement the Kerr-Mills program of medical assistance for the aged seems to be in good shape. The financing would come from a $2 increase in the $3.50 head tax, which is imposed on those between 21 and 60.

Introducers of the measure Sens. T. C. Reeves of Central City and Maurice Kermer of Aurora, say large chain stores and discount firms are making things difficult for the small businessman and the state has a responsibility to look out for the "small man."

Power Review Board
Governor Morrison has named three persons to the five-member state power review board, established by this session of the legislature to handle public power disputes.

Named were W. H. Norton of Osceola, Walter Witthoff of Fremont and Clair Callan of Odell. The other two members were to be named subsequently.

Norton is an attorney, Witthoff an accountant and Callan is a Democrat who was defeated in the last general election when he tried to unseat Rep. Ralph Beerman of Dakota City. Witthoff is chairman of the Republican state platform committee.

Mrs. Ron Wolf and son of Nora Springs, Iowa, came by plane Monday and spent until Thursday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Stander and family.

A good-sized fight apparently is building up in the legislature over a proposed statewide Sunday closing law.

One of the legislators, Sen. William B. Brandt of Unadilla, said he cannot support any proposal "that will put any small, legitimate enterprise out of business. This bill, in its present form, would do that."

He added that he feels the Sunday closing bill, LB 710, would control competition.

According to Brandt, "Anything that interferes with individual freedoms is not consistent with our philosophy of free enterprise. It doesn't make sense to say we subscribe to all the theories of free enterprise, except where it applies to us."

Brandt said he might change his attitude if the proposal can be amended properly.

LB 710 is scheduled for first round debate soon. Under last minute amendments in committee those who conscientiously observe the seventh day of the week (Saturday) as a day of rest would be permitted to do business on Sunday — if they closed their business places on Saturday.

The measure would not disturb city ordinances which require businesses to close on either Saturday or Sunday.

Brandt said he would like to have the bill amended to exempt businesses employing three persons or less and to restrict the amount of floor space a business would have to have to remain closed on Sunday.

Introducers of the measure Sens. T. C. Reeves of Central City and Maurice Kermer of Aurora, say large chain stores and discount firms are making things difficult for the small businessman and the state has a responsibility to look out for the "small man."

The new law stipulates the board must consist of an attorney, an accountant and engineer and two lay persons. The engineer and one other lay person were to be the last named.

There is general agreement that the bill leading to creation of the board, LB 220, will be the main public power legislation enacted this session.

The law states the public power districts must reach agreement on what retail service areas they will serve before July 1, 1964, or the review board will step in and start making decisions.

The board is also empowered to approve major new generation and transmission facilities and will exercise advisory authority over rate disputes between power districts.

Centennial Commission
Governor Morrison has appointed four more members to the state centennial commission.

They are: Joseph Vosoba of Wilber; Ed Schultz of Lincoln, secretary of the state fair board; William Galbraith of Beemer, state commander of the American Legion; and Jake Isaacson of Omaha, former general manager of Ak-Sar-Ben. Vosoba is a former state senator.

Under recently enacted legislation, the commission was expanded from 10 to 15 members. The 15th position was expected to be filled soon.
