Fat Cattle Move Higher at Omaha

Fat cattle values continued to climb higher Monday at Omaha, while fat lambs held steady and hogs pointed lower.

Supply on fat cattle again was on the light side for a Monday. Slaughter steers, yearlings and heifers sold generally 25 to 50c higher, best action on steers.

Top on steers hit $25.35, paid for cattle weighing 1284; heifer top reached $25. Both those figures were best since February. Other steers sold from $24.60 to $25.25; mixed yearlings to $25. Bulk of the slaughter steers, yearlings and heifers sold from $23 to $24.50, plainer cattle $22.50 down. Holstein steers sold to $21.50.

Cows sold unevenly steady to 50c lower, most canners and cutters $12-$14.75, beef cows on up to $16.50.

Stockers and feeders were fully steady to strong, replacement steers $21.50 to $28, latter weighing 525-565 pounds and 600-pound yearlings included at $27.40. Feeding heifers weighing 663 brot $23.50. Heifer calves weighing 397-425 sold to $27 and $27.50.

After hitting a new season's high of $19.50 last week, butcher hogs Monday sold 25 to 50c lower, mostly 50c off. Salable supply totaled 14,500 head. Sows were 25-50c lower. Most 190 to 330 pound butchers sold from $16 to $19, top $19.10 sparingly; 280-560 pound sows $13.25 to $16.25.

Fat lambs sold steady, Springers $20 to $22, old crop hogs to $18.50. Slaughter ewes were steady at $4.50 to $5.30.

Among recent sales at Omaha for shippers from Cass County:

Charles Martin, 25 steers, wt. 1090, $23.25.

'Zepel'

LINCOLN — Zepel is a newly-developed fluorine-based textile finish, which makes clothing and home furnishings fabrics resistant to oil and water-borne stains, according to Anna Maria Kreifels, University of Nebraska Extension clothing and textiles specialist.

Zepel is an odorless compound, when applied in the finishing process it does not affect either hands or appearance of items and remains effective through repeated washings and drycleanings, the specialist said.

164 DROWNINGS
One hundred sixty-four drownings occurred in Nebraska between 1957 and 1961 and many of these deaths could have been prevented if adequate safety practices or supervision had been available.

Rollin Schnieder, University of Nebraska Extension farm safety specialist, says many of these drownings occurred in unsupervised swimming areas such as sand pits, ponds, rivers, reservoirs and other areas. Farm livestock water tanks also took a toll in human lives. Only a very small percentage of drownings occurred where adequate safety precautions were exercised.
