Farmer's Math Book Available

LINCOLN — Today's farmer must make hundreds of mathematical calculations during each year. And poor management decisions sometimes are caused by inadequate knowledge of financial and other calculations on which management decisions should be based.

"From time to time, a farmer sees shortcut methods for figuring things such as simple interest rates, the amount of corn in a pile, or the acreage of an odd-shaped field. But chances are he can't find the magazine, newspaper or other source which contained these scattered bits of information," point out agricultural economists at the University of Nebraska.

Now available is a U. S. Department of Agriculture publication which has pulled together a great deal of this type of information. Entitled "Farmer's Handbook of Financial Calculations and Physical Measurements," it is known as Agriculture Handbook, No. 230, and can be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents in Washington, D. C., for 35 cents.

DAC Day of Remembrance
 The National Society of Daughters of the American Colonists has declared Nov. 11, DAC Day of Remembrance, of all patients in VA Hospitals and has sent folders for distribution to each veteran, including 700 in Nebraska.

There are 109,771 veterans in VA Hospitals in this country, according to Mrs. Harvey H. Bryan, Omaha, chairman of the Middle West Section DAC Rehabilitation and Veterans Hospital Committee.

MILK PRODUCTION UPPED
 Since 1950, around the U. S., the number of milk cows on farms dropped from about 22 million to less than 17 million—a 23 per cent decline. The number of dairy farms dropped 31 per cent in that time. Milk production, however, increased from 117 billion pounds to about 126 billion pounds—an increase of eight per cent. Milk production per cow rose from 5,300 pounds to 7,300 pounds.

NEBRASKAland's first pheasant season was held in 1927.
