THE PEOPLE'S MONEY

HOW GOLD STANDARD WORKS.

THE present condition of affairs constitutes an object lesson that ought not to be lost on thoughtful people. We are realizing some of the results of our supreme folly in permitting British and foreign interests to dictate the character of our monetary system. The situation is more ominous than the symptoms that appear on the surface would indicate. Those surface symptoms are the continued outflow of gold and an uneasy feeling in business circles that the British gold standard is leading to results that were not anticipated by those who ignorantly placed their influence behind it. Behind this uneasiness in business circles is to be found an absolute depression of trade almost equal in extent to that which followed the fall in silver and the subsequent unconditional repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman act in 1893.

Two weeks ago the information came that various manufacturing industries were shutting down for the purpose of keeping up prices. That movement showed the desperate tactics to which our industries are driven to realize profits under the British gold standard. During the week just closed the number of failures was almost as large as that of the "panic year," 1893, and liabilities were only a million less.

Dun's report says that there is no reaction from the business depression, and frankly adds that "efforts to explain it or to attribute it to this or that temporary influence are wasted." That is true. It can be explained only by the operations of the single gold standard, which constantly enhances the value of gold as compared with other forms of property and with all the products of human labor. There can be no prosperity under the single gold standard in a nation that is a heavy debtor of foreign countries.

Under the monetary standard that is suited to our people we would be able to pay our foreign debts with the surplus of our staple commodities, such as wheat, cotton, provisions, etc., but under the single gold standard the prices of our exportable commodities are so low that the sum realized for them falls far short of paying our debts abroad, and, consequently, our small and constantly dwindling stock of gold must be drawn on.

The speculative spirit in business, over which the gold monometallists congratulated themselves two or three months ago, has entirely expended its strength. Industries that responded to it in the vain hope that it meant a revival of prosperity have been compelled to shut down or to sell their products at prices that represent only the most meager profits. Over and over again the Constitution and other bimetallics have assured business men that there can be no permanent prosperity in this country under the single gold standard. We have not permitted this statement to go out either as a prediction or as an assumption, but have shown, with an accuracy that is mathematical, that the increased demand for gold would make it more valuable, and that this constantly increasing value would hurt all forms of business, save that of money lending, and reduce the prices of all products of human labor below the profit level.

That is precisely what has happened and is happening, and it is this process that drags both business and speculation down when they make an effort to rise to the high level of prosperity that formerly marked the course of trade and traffic. It seems queer indeed that there are to be found people who cannot see what is happening before their eyes. The Constitution is now and always has been the apostle of optimism. But the most pronounced optimist cannot afford to discredit his sanity by pretending to believe that the people can be really prosperous under the single gold standard, unless, by means of a miracle, the world's stock of gold available for monetary purposes should be trebled or quadrupled.

We say that our people—especially the people of the South—are able to survive the operations of the single gold standard for a time at least; but we say, too, that it is both foolish and criminal to compel them to suffer under a system that robs them for the benefit of the money lenders and gold speculators.

The most ordinary intelligence can perceive the direction in which the country is drifting under the British gold standard. The tendencies are all in the direction of bankruptcy. We are told, when the administration threw the doors of the treasury open to the skylocks of Europe and invited them to help themselves, that the outflow of gold was caused by the issue of treasury notes for the purchase of silver. This was stopped, and when gold continued to go out we were informed (after two bond issues) that a syndicate of foreign bankers had pledged themselves to prevent the export of gold. The syndicate did reasonably well until it pocketed its immense profits, and then it dropped the affair as a child would drop a hot potato.

Now that gold has begun to go out at the rate of more than a million a day we are politely informed that, after all, the greenbacks and treasury notes are the cause of the trouble, and that if the people will consent to the suppression and retirement of $500,000,000 of legal tender money, everything will then be serene, because the treasury will not then need to keep any gold on hand.

This so-called "remedy" will only make our financial troubles more acute. Such a tremendous contraction of our legal tender money will lower prices still further and add tenfold to the business depression that has been gradually deepening and increasing ever since our mints were closed to silver. Nevertheless the money power is behind it, the administration is working actively for it, and it may be that the representatives of the people can be induced to sell them out again, just as they were sold out in 1893.—Atlanta Constitution.

The Usefulness of a Jest.

He stood upon the platform of his car, serene and smiling, when every car driver and truckman on West street was swearing and cursing. The jam was tremendous and the street was packed from curb to curb. Yet whenever he spoke it was with some good-natured jest, and the truck drivers turned out of his way and let car No. 78 go by. He hailed them all with merry badinage, and the surliest of them grinned from ear to ear and gave him back all that he sent.

"It's easy," he said to me confidentially. "When once you get a man to smile he'll do anything you want him to do. Did you see that surly chap driving the beer wagon? I kept chaffing him until I got him to laughing, and when a man once lets a smile chase over his face he's a goner. I tell you, my friend, that even down here in West street good-nature will go further in getting your own way than all the yelling and cursing."

And the philosophical car driver whipped up his horses and told the charioteer of the ice wagon in front that no man could stop things up as he did unless he were from Cork. The ice wagon turned aside, and the ice man grinned and said that he was from Limerick.—New York Herald.

Disastrous Failure!

We can mention no failure more disastrous than that of physical energy. It involves the partial suspension of the digestive and assimilative processes, and entails the retirement from business of the liver and kidneys. Only through the good offices of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters can the restoration of its former vigorous status be hoped for. When this ail has been secured, a resumption of activity in the stomach, liver and bowels may be relied upon. The Bitters conquers malaria and kidney troubles.

President Diaz of Mexico is a man of tremendous energy. At 65 he possesses the bodily and mental activity of a man twenty years younger. He attributes his health to the fact that he has been a great eater and a good sleeper.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.
