MAS HAD A VARIED CAREER.

Mrs. Isabel Ball, the First Woman

Reporter in Congress. Mrs. Isabel Worrell Ball's name will go down to posterity as that of the first woman ever regularly admitted to the press gaileries of the Senate and House of Representatives in Washington, Mrs. Ball's record reads like one of Bret Harte's stories, and she has seen life in many and varied phases. She was born in a little double log cabin in Putnam County, Ill. Raised in the thick of politics, her father being the well-known lawyer and politician, James Purcell Worrell, she is as erudite concerning the doings of both Republican and Democratic parties as the best man among them. She says of herself: "Of the knowledge learned in schools I have a limited supply. The world has been my schoolroom, and men and women with eyes and ears and judgment enough to use them properly will get a liberal education in that way. Later, in Kansas, I herded my father's cattle, and, saving the hire of a man, earned the money necessary for a course in the State Normal School."

A change then came over the spirit of this daring young woman's dream, for she was offered the position of school teacher in the county, with an abandoned saloon wherein to domicile the young idea. Her career went on broadening from this point, and she passed through all the gamut of positions from that of a clerk of the District Court to a place in the State historical rooms, meanwhile finding time to marry Harry M. Ball-a studious, quiet and reserved man, who thinks his energetic wife a marvel of cleverness. With him she went to New Mexico to live, where they led a wild life, often in danger from the hostile Indians. Mrs. Ball has taken to the pen and found fine material in the scenes and dangers encountered. In time she became city editor of a Kansas journal and after serving a four-year apprenticeship went to Washington to try her fortune. Success has met her on every side, as her strong individuality, brilliancy and original way of viewing matters in general gained her immediate recognition. Her early mingling in political matters has stood her in good stead, for she is in the midst of the American world of politics, and much of her work is done in the political arena. She is telegraphic correspondent for a Western paper, wiring to it every day.

Lost Reason and Fortune.

A peculiarly sad case of insanity, due to disappointed hope, has been made public in New York. George W. Wilson, a lawyer, is the victim and he is now in a padded cell in Bloomingdale Asylum. In 1892 Wilson undertook the contest of a will in behalf of heirs who were not included in it. The amount involved was $20,000,000 and Wilson was promised a fee of $5,000,000 if he won. From that Jay Wilson was a changed man. He abandoned all other business, and never for a moment seemed to think that he would lose his suit. He promised large sums of money to his friends, always calculating that he would certainly receive the $5,000,006 ice. Finally the case came to trial and Wilson lost. He fell down in the courtroom and had to be driven home in his carriage. He constantly raved about the $5,000,000 fee and finally became so violent that he had to be taken to the asylum, where the physicians pro nounced his case incurable.

TAMMANY 00000000000000000000000000

The demonstration that greeted William Jennings Bryan in New York City the other night was most remarkable in its character. Blockaded streets, crowded anditorium, besieged speaking stands and crowds that defied the energy of the potures. Tammany Hall, that had made the arrangements for the welcome and reception, outdid itself in the doing. Tammany is noted for enthusiastic assemblazes, and within the big assembly hall the members tore the air with shouts of aproval of the candidates, of the American flag and of every comment that savored either of patriotism or loyalty to Democratic principles.

Every man who entered was presented with a flag, the effect being that when anything pleased the audience, the crowded nail seemed one huge wave of the stars and stripes. So, too, Tammany is cosmopolitan, and on the several stands there waved with the predominant "Star Spangled Banner" the flag of Italy, of Ireland, of Germany, and the union jack of England. As early as 7 o'clock Tammany Hail was jammed to the doors and the police were wrestling with the thousands outside who were demanding admission, which, when they did not get it, drove them to various stands erected at vantage points within the space of six blocks of Tammany. The small army of policemen fought and struggled with the crowd to keep the streets open for traffic, but they soon gave it up and allowed them to stand massed in front of the stands. The police who escorted Mr. Bryan through the lines had to fight like tigers, the people refusing to move even when the horses almost trampled upon them. Soon after Mr. Bryan entered Tammany Hall a driving rainstorm started and it was not long before at least half the crowd had sought shelter. Shortly after 8 o'clock a commotion in the rear of the stage sent a buzz of excitement through the immense crowd in the hall, and an instant later the police plowed a narrow passageway, which revealed the figure of Mr. Bryan. On either side of him were Arthur Sewall, the vice presidential candidate, and George Fred Williams, just nominated by three conventions for the Governorship of Massachusetts. The ensuing scene had rarely been equaled in old Tammany. The crowd fell into a frenzy, and their tremendous volume of sound, which began then, ended exactly seven minutes later, and the air was kaleidoscopic with waving hats and flags. During the demonstration Mr. Bryan stood erect, gazing directly before him. There was a gratified smile on his lips and a gleam of joy in his eyes. Eventually he raised his hand and secured si-ience. Then he said: I wish to express my gratitude to the Tammany society for the privilege which it has afforded me of speaking to the people here assembled. I appreciate the value of an organization like this, trained, compact and ready to do effective service in any cause which the society espouses, I am glad to carry back to the West the news-although it is no news to any one who reads the pa-pers or knows the history of the organization -that the Tammany society is in dead earnest in its effort to give effective support not only to the Chicago ticket, but to the Chicago platform, upon which the ticket stands.

The Tammany society is compelled by its constitution to celebrate each returning Fourth of July, and upon that day is directed by its organic law to read in the presence of those assembled the declaration of American independence. I was in this hall once before, and it was on the Fourth of July, when I was permitted to take part in one of your celebrations. I am not surprised that an organization which reads every year the declaration of American independence gives its support to a platform which declares for financial independence.

I am glad to defend our principles in New York City. I am glad that every day adds to the number of those in the State of New York who give allegiance to the principles set forth in the Chicago platform, and I have such confidence in the justice of our cause that I believe that every day from now until election day will add to the number of the supporters of free coinage at 16 to 1.

Before addressing myself to the paramount ssue of this campaign I desire to refer to the language used here in this city by the former President, Benjamin Harrison. My friends, please refrain from expressing your ill-feeling. I quote his words because words coming from so high a Republican source ought to be considered, even if you cannot agree with them. Let me read you what

"In my opinion there is no issue presented by the Chicago convention more important and vital than the question they have raised of abrogating the power and duty of the national courts and the National Executive. The defense of the Constitution and of the integrity of the Supreme Court of the United States and of the President's powers to en-force all the laws of the United States without obtaining the call or consent of the Governor of any State is an important and living issue in this campaign. The tariff and free coinage will be of little moment if our constitutional government is overthrown." I call your attention to the fact that ex-President Harrison has said that our platform raises this question, and that constitutional government is in danger. If the platform did so, we might turn from the discussion of any question to consider anything which menaces the continuation of constituional government. But there is nothing in the Chicago platform that would make the Executive of the United States feeble in enforcing all the laws of the nation, or feeble in defending the Constitution of the nation. There is nothing in that platform that assails the integrity or questions the honesty of the Supreme Court of the United States.

Compared with Lincoln's Platform. I challenge you to read that platform and find in it a single sentiment that justifies the language used by the former President. Our criticism of the Supreme Court is not as se-vere as the criticism of the platform upon which Abraham Lincoln was elected in 1860. Nothing that I have uttered in regard to the Supreme Court has been as severe as the language used by Abraham Lincoln, both before and after his election to the Presidency of the United States. There is nothing in our platform concerning the invasion of a State by Federal troops that equals in force or emchasis the platform of 1860, upon which Abraham Lincoln was elected.

There is nothing that has been said in the platform or by the candidates that justifies the statement that the Democratic party is assailing constitutional government or interder. I will go further than that. If Mr. Harrison wants to raise the question of the survival of our Government, I am willing to meet him on that proposition. My friends, in so far as the Republicans and former Democrats have criticised my election as a menace to law and order, I want to say that their fear is not as an Executive I might be lax in forcing the law, but their fear is that as an Executive I would not be a respecter of

Who are they that they are so afraid the law will not be enforced? Those who are most fearful of a lax enforcement of the law are the very persons who would suffer most if the law was enforced. The very persons who are afraid are the ones who have violated the law with impunity. If Mr. Harrison wants to raise the question of the survival of our institutions I will tell him that the great trusts of this country, which are supporting the Republican ticket, are a greater menace to our Government than any declaration of the Democratic party. The coal trust sends its representatives to sit by every fireside and exacts tribute from those who need warmth. The oil trust sends its representatives to collect tribute from when we protest against it they call us disturbers of the peace and anarchists. I am opposed to the trusts. As Executive I shall use what power I have to drive every trust out of existence. If the present laws are not sufficient to meet this requirement I will recommend such laws as will be sufficient. If the Constitution of the United States is so construed as to prevent any !:terference with the operation of the trusts I shall recommend such an amendment to the Constitution as will permit the punishment of these trusts. My friends, there is a great contest in this country, which must be settled, and that is whether a few of the people standing together are more powerful than all the people, While I do not array class against class, I lice in their stability were some of the fea- am willing to array all the people who against the few people who operate the

If our opponents are afraid to discuss the money question and risk a verdict on that alone, we will defy them and let the people decide whether those who are advocating the free coinage of silver and are standing by the Chicago platform are better to be trusted than the syndicates, stock exchanges, noney grabbers and the trusts' representatives, who want to run this country to suit

I understand that a distinguished citizen of this State-Chauncey M. Depew-I understand that he also thinks my election would be dangerous to the country. There is one advantage in having Mr. Depew against me, and that is, if I am elected he will not come down to Washington and tell me that as he helped to elect me he wants me to keep off the plank in our platform in favor of the arbitration of disputes between railroads and employes.

There is another advantage which I shall derive from his opposition. If I am elected he will not come down to Washington, and, on the ground that he helped me, ask me to use the Executive influence against that bill that passed the Senate and which attempts to protect the people from government by in-

My friends, there is one great consolation that I find in the opponents that have arrayed themselves against me-that by not having their aid in the campaign I won't have heir domination after the campaign.

For Independent Free Coinage.

Our platform has declared, my friends, that the paramount issue of this campaign is the money question, and I believe it is true, because upon the result of this election will turn, for a time at least, the financial policy of this country. The Republican party, in convention assembled, had declared that this nation must not change its preseent financial policy until foreign nations shall join us in abandoning it. The Democratic platform declares in favor of an American platform for the American people. When I defend an independent financial policy I am not appealing to any prejudice which any citizen of the United States may have against any foreign nation. I am simply doing in this country what every Engishman does in England, what every German does in Germany, what every Frenchman does in France. I am asserting, and I shall defend, the right of this people to attend to their own business.

If the gold standard is a good thing, then we ought to keep it, whether other nations want us to keep it or not. If it is a bad thing, we ought to get rid of it because they want us to keep it. The Republican party does not say that the gold standard is a good thing. The Republican party expressly declares that bimetallism is better than the gold standard, because when the Republican platform pledges the Republican party to substitute the double standard for the gold standard it makes a valid declaration that the double standard is desirable in preference to the single gold standard.

That is the platform, and after declaring bimetallism desirable it asserts we must delay its advantages until those advantages are brought to us by other nations. It proposes to surrender the right of legislation over the subject and transfer legislative power from Washington to the seat of one or more of the foreign nations, who wish to govern us in this respect.

My friends, no foreign nation has ever adopted such a policy as the Republican party asks us to adopt. No foreign party has ever gone before its country with such a proposition as the Republican party now presents to the United States. So far as I know, no statesman in a foreign land has advocated a policy that would make the people of that nation dependent upon the people of another nation for legislative relief of any kind. It has been left to free America to set the example of a national party proposing to surrender the right of self-government and bind its people to the will of foreign powers.

I want to say to you that not only has no national party ever advocated the gold standard in a platform. I want to say to you that the leading representatives of the Republican party have expressly denounced the gold standard and the results that follow it. I want to call your attention to the lan-guage used by the present Republican candidate for the Presidency in a speech made in Toledo, Feb. 12, 1891. I have quoted this language before. It has been published in the newspapers, and, never having been answered, I think we may safely assume that the newspaper report at the time correctly recorded what Mr. McKinley said. Let me read it to you: "During all of Grover Cleveland's years at the head of the Government he was dishonoring one of the precious metals, one of our great products; discrediting silver and enhancing the price of gold. He endeavored, even before his inauguration, to offer to stop the coinage of silver dollars, and to the end of his administration he has persistently used his power to that end. He was determined to contract the circulating medium and demontize one class of coins, limiting the volume of money among the people and making money scarce, and, therefore, dear. He would have increased the value of money and diminished the value of everything else. He wanted to make money the master and everything else its servant.

My friends, I have quoted to you what the Republican candidate said only five years ago of the President of the United States. I quote you the language in which the Republican candidate denounced the policy of Mr. Cleveland, and yet the Republican convention has declared in favor of continuing the policy of the President.

Mr. McKinley said in 1891 that the present President of the United States wanted to make money scarce, and, therefore, dear. And now he stands upon a platform which ndorses the process and promises to carry it out and make money scarce, and, there-fore, dear. He said in 1891 that the present President wanted to make money the master and everything else the servant, and yet he stands upon a platorm that carries out the present policy and makes money the master and everything else the servant.

My friends, the Republican candidate in that speech at Toledo showed that he understood then the fundamental principle which inderlies the money question-namely, that the value of a dollar depends upon the numper of dollars. He recognized then that we could make dollars dear by lessening their number. He recognized then that you can raise the purchasing power of the dollar by law, and by law reduce the value of all kinds of property. He recognized then that legislation in favor of the gold standard made money the master and all things else the servant, and we have a right to conclude that, since he has adopted that policy, he believes that money should be the master, and that all things else should be the serv-

Defends His Position.

My friends, we support our cause not by the imaginings of people to whom you refuse credit for knowledge and wisdom. We can support our position in the language of the ry men to whom we look for advice a instruction. I can quote you what the sandidate for President on the Republican ticket has said, and tell you that if those words were true then they are true now, even though he would blot them out and try to change their meaning. I can call to your attention what Senator Sherman, who has been the most successful politician in the Republican party, has said on this subject. Only six years ago he declared that the people must have an increase in the volume of money to keep pace with our increasing population and trade. Mr. Bryan continued with a lengthy and most severe denunciation of the gold standard and the Republican party, and then said: I have respect for the man who has convictions, who states those convictions and stands by those convictions. I respect the Republicans who stand openly and above board for the Republican ticket, but, my friends, I shall not attempt to disguise the feelings which I entertain toward those who, having failed to control the Democratic party, seek still to claim the Democratic name, who, having failed to control the Demthose who use light. ### TRUTH OR FICTION?

THE QUESTION WHICH WORRIED THE MIND OF THE BAN-NER SCRIBE.

Proven Undoubtedly True by a Practical Test Applied Locally by One of Bussey's Best Known and Respected Ladies-A Strange Story Easily Veri-"Testimonials" Are Not Fakes-Mrs. Elliott's Story a Clincher.

From the Banner, Bussey. Ionca. The great frequency with which our attention has been attracted to certain articles, which generally go the rounds of all the leading newspapers, has caused us to wonder and speculate a great deal as to why none of these things ever happened to occur nearer home, and finally our interest and wonder grew to such a pitch that, knowing a certain lady in Bussey to be a regular purchaser of Pink Pills for something over two years, by reason of the fact that she had also induced our own wife to give it a trial, with very beneficial results, we at last determined to put the matter to the test and see if this lady could put aside her natural repugnance to appearing so prominently in print in order to encourage people generally to the greater use of her favorite remedy, by giving her testimoniai for publication in her home paper, where those who read would know that it was no hoax fixed up merely to catch the unwary and credulous. With this object in view, we called on Tuesday afternoon on Anna Elliott, wife of our esteemed townsman, W. A. Elliott, proprietor of the Commercia! Hotel, the leading hostelry of Bussey. Iowa. Mrs. Elliott is a lady well known for the ability and tact displayed in the management of the interior arrangements and affairs of the hotel, and the wonder has always been with those who have observed the amount of care and exertion required on her part, as to how she ever managed to keep up so well under the strain, and we give the sequel in her own words:

'I have been landlady of the Commercial House now for nearly six years, and for a long time was hardly able to get along with the work at all, being always out of sorts, affected by pains in the head, dizziness and general weakness and nervousness, always feeling overworked and hardly able to drag myself around from morning till night, often nearly wishing that I were dead. "If things had gone on much longer in this way I would certainly have broken down entirely and had to give up my work, but, luckily, just at this juncture, I happened to read an article about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, which seemed to cover the symptoms of my case exactly, and I sent direct to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, at Schenectady, N. Y., and procured two trial boxes. These did me so much good and I felt so much encouraged that I sent for a $2.50 package, and have always taken good care to keep a supply of them on hand, since, in over two years now. "Their continued use put me on my feet completely, as the saying is, and I have felt stronger and better able to do my work and see to things about the hotel than I ever was in my life before, and Pink Pills have become the standard remedy in our family for every ill arising from debility of any kind.

"One member of our family has been completely cured of a very bad and longstanding case of kidney troubfe, while a number of the neighbors who have tried them speak highly in the praise of this remedy, and declare that there is no other medicine that can possibly supply its

Those who know Mrs. Elliott know full well that she would not be willing to authorize the publication of the above statement without every word of it being strictly true, but to prove conclusively to any strangers who may read this article that it is every word "as true as gospel" she subscribes to the following affidavit, in the bope that her tellow beings who suffer as she did may be convinced of the wonderful merits of Pink Pills for Pale People, and thereby be led to obtain relief through giving them a prompt and thor-
