Col. Hernandez Tells of the Fierce Fight with the Spaniards.

The question of Gen. Maceo's death now seems fully decided. J. A. Huau, a Florida Cuban agent, has just received a letter from Col. Andres Hernandez, who commanded the Cuban detachment that went to re-enferce Gen. Maceo's forces. In his letter Col. Hernandez says:

"December 7 was a day we will never forget, for it was then that we suffered

BUSINESS GROWING BETTER.

Gradual and Steady Improvement in General Trade.

T. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that it is not the largest and most powerful vessel that can be started most quickly, and it takes time for new confidence to reach through easier money markets, large orders, resuming mills, expanding employment and larger distribution, to the results which make still greater and lasting gain possible. Such gradual and steady improvement has been in progress for more than two months.

Textile manufacturers are not encouraged by the demand for goods, which scarcely increases, though more print cloths were sold than for many weeks. Though woolen goods do not improve, there have been enormous purchases of great misfortune in the tragic death (by ambush) of our noble Maceo. We were encamped near the fight that day and heard the firing. Gen. Maceo came across the trochs unknown to us with but forty men. More than 1,500 Spaniards who were informed of his trip ambushed him. He rode into it and was shot at the first fire.

"We heard the firing, and, thinking some of our friends had been attacked by Spanish guerrillas, we started off at once to their aid, though we had but 400 men. when we reached the field of battle it was almost over, and we were told Gen. Maceo was killed and his body tied to a horse's tall and the Spanish were taking it off. Our men were perfectly frantic over the report. We dashed forward with drawn machetets, and what a fight that was. The Spaniards met us and the encounter was terrible. Our men fought to kill, only bent on avenging Gen. Maceo's death. Our sharp machetes fell with regularity, and I think we killed more than 200 of the enemy, and, what is more, we had the consolation of recovering the body of our beloved leader, Gen. Maceo. We buried the body in a secret and secure place. Myself and a few selected men only know the location. In due time it will be made public."
