The Farmers' and Stockmen's Institute.
 The farmers' institute held here under the auspices of the Nebraska state university, co-operating with our local institute, has been a most pronounced success. The large hall at the court house, where the meeting was held, was crowded beyond its seating capacity. The opening was under the direction of C. A. Whitford, of Arlington, who delivered an address on "Agricultural Methods." O. W. Hahn, a practical farmer, gave a very interesting talk on "Agricultural Experiences of a Cherry County Farmer." "Does It Pay to Keep Blooded Stock in the Sand Hills?" was discussed by William Wilson. This was followed by a general experience meeting of the cattlemen of Cherry county.

M. L. Walker was selected to introduce the subject of growing alfalfa in Cherry county. This proved to be a very interesting subject and elicited much discussion both for and against its success. It, however, resulted in an expression favoring the culture of alfalfa. On the second day, "Some Points on Horticulture," by C. A. Whitford; "Experience in Tree Growing in Cherry County," by C. M. Van Meter, were subjects that interested the audience. The subject of "Sheep and Wool," by G. W. Hervey, was ably discussed. The poultry subject was fully discussed by papers given by O. W. Morey and J. A. Brewer, and poultry diseases were then taken up by Dr. Peters. This subject was pretty fully canvassed from a practical standpoint. Several other subjects were discussed in an informal way.

This is reported by the institute people to be the most enthusiastic and best attended institute held this year. It is safe to say that the people of Valentine and Cherry county are alive to their business interests. Officers elected for the ensuing year are President, O. W. Hahn; vice-president, W. A. Wilson; Secretary, Mark Cypers; Corresponding Secretary, Prof. R. H. Watson; Treasurer, J. A. Hornback.

Dr. Peters on Blackleg.
 Perhaps the most interesting meeting of the institute was that held Friday afternoon, when A. T. Peters spoke on "blackleg." Dr. Peters is an acknowledged authority on this subject and his words were listened to with profound attention. He said that blackleg is caused by a microbe which lies dormant in the grass, hay or the earth, until taken into the system of an animal through the medium of a wound, when it immediately begins to propagate, at a wonderful rate. Only young animals are attacked, and as the cells of the animal tissue are not compact, a gas is formed, and it is this gas which causes the peculiar crackling or rustling sound heard when the hand is passed over the body of the animal. The doctor calls the gas inflated portions of the animal "tumors," and says that it is possible to cure the animal if the tumor is opened and disinfected in its very early stages. The chances are however one hundred to one that the operation will not prove a success, hence the only thing to do is adopt preventive measures. Referring to the habit of roweling with turpentine, blue vitriol, spanish flies, etc., he said that this operation might protect the animal temporarily, three months, possibly, but that it would prove successful no longer. So long as the sore remained and the animal did not gain in flesh it was all right. This and the practice of "nerving" merely lowered the vitality of the animal and are very expensive to the owner, both in first cost and the loss of flesh on the animal. He strongly recommended vaccination, and claimed that if the government or state vaccine is used strictly according to directions, it will prevent blackleg. Every failure of the vaccine could be traced to its improper use. The vaccine does not give the blackleg in a mild form as is usually supposed—it merely matures the cells of the animal tissue, and thus prevents the formation of the gas previously referred to. Blackleg is a disease peculiar to immaturity like measles, whooping-cough, scarletina and kindred diseases in the human family, and while it may be contracted is seldom found in stock more than two and a half years old. The vaccine is supplied free of cost by the state and national governments, and the only cost to the user is about $5.00 for syringe, etc. Vaccination should not be done within two weeks of branding or dehorning, either before or after. Dr. Peters says blackleg will affect a human being, and said he knew at least three deaths which resulted from imprudent post mortem examinations, and he is very positive that blackleg cannot occur unless there is a wound on the animal. It may be very slight, but there must be a wound to allow the germs to enter the system.

Protect the Birds.
 Robert Good, editor of the Valentine NEWS-DEMOCRAT, protests against the passage of amendments to the game laws of Nebraska that will permit hunters to kill prairie chickens before October 1. His arguments seem sound and very much to the point. If the open season does not begin until October 1 the birds will be large enough to make genuine sport, and at the same time to be of use to the hunter after they have been shot. Earlier in the season they are too small to protect themselves by flight, and the flesh is so tender that it cannot be taken long distances in the heat of August and September without spoiling. Mr. Good's communication on deserves the close attention of the members of the legislature.

It has the earnest indorsement of Professor Lawrence Bruner, who has just issued a special university bulletin calling attention to the service done by the birds in exterminating the insect enemies of agriculture and horticulture, and calling upon the people of the state to protect all kinds of birds with jealous care. Professor Bruner in discussing Mr. Good's letter with the Journal, says that he would go even farther than is there suggested. The open season ought to be at least as late as October 1, but if he had his way about it he would feel like suspending the open season altogether. In his bulletin he makes the startling statement that the birds of Nebraska require 1,875,000,000 insects for each day's rations. This means that the birds of this state dispose of 15,625 bushels of insects in a single day, or more than a million bushels during the six months of warm weather. Even the unthinking ought to understand what this means to Nebraska farming and fruit growing. Professor Bruner insists that the matter is of supreme importance, and that if we are negligent in the matter of protecting the birds we will be made to suffer in a way that will remind us of the old grasshopper visitations—State Journal.

Got Whipped Twice in One Day
 Tuesday morning Fred Folks and John Thompson became involved in an altercation about the ownership of a dog, and John's father, "Hackberry," took a hand in the row. The result was a general mixup, in which "Hackberry" got decidedly the worst of it. Many of the "boys" sympathized with him in a spiritual manner, and early in the afternoon Marshal Layport started in to quell the racket the spirits were making in the Owl Saloon. "Hackberry" didn't quell worth a cent, and soon he and the marshal were busily engaged hurling epithets at each other's heads. Tiring of this pleasant pastime their fighting blood got uppermost, and soon there was another mixup, the marshal swatting the liveryman a couple of times and laying him out in the first round. "Hackberry" breathed vengeance, and spit blood, but up to date no arrests have been made, and everything is as quiet as the most ultra anti-war enthusiast could wish. Much excitement was caused over the two affrays, much comment has been made, and much whiskey has been taken place over the humerous side of the case, and for the life of us we have been unable to see where anybody has been justified in their various courses. And here endeth the chronicle.

C. K. Smith is preparing to do considerable fencing on his ranch in the near future. Alex Burr came down from the ranch Tuesday and will go to Alliance the last of the week. Chris Abbott drove in from his ranch Sunday with a pair of bobs and was showing some of our town people a warm time. About twenty couples went out to the Corrother's ranch Tuesday night as a surprise party, it being the 20th birthday of Floyd Moran. Whitman Sun.

 W. S. Kilgore has been on the sick list for a day or two but is better at present. Phil Fleming made a flying trip to Valentine Saturday evening in quest of repairs. John Heelan has treated his house to a coat of paint this week. Geo. Harden being employed to do the work. Marion Kilgore, of Johnstown, is visiting his brother. J. T. Kief is quite sick at the home of John Thomas, but we understand he is improving rapidly under the treatment of Dr. J. C. Dwyer, who was called Saturday. The Lovelock Bros. loaded a car of hay here the fore part of the week. Mr. A. Benson is also loading hay here for shipment. Most of the hay shipped from here goes to Fort Robinson. M. J. Benson made a business trip to Valentine Monday. His business is again numbered among our citizens. MATO
