D. A. Campbell, clerk of the supreme court, was in town Sunday and visited G. W. Herve's ranch near Crookston.

Geo. Tracewell has opened the hotel near the court house and requests all to give him a call. He promises a square meal and hospital treatment.

John A. Harmon, one of the leading democrats and lawyers of O'Neill, was in town yesterday and is now in the north part of the county on business.

J. L. Dawson, who is putting in a store at Oak Creek, on the reservation, was in town last Friday superintending the moval of supplies to his place.

Wm. Steele was called to Gordon Saturday by a telegram saying that his wife, who went there to attend the funeral of her sister, Mrs. Dix, was seriously ill.

Ben Brave, the full blooded Sioux who spoke here last Fourth of July, delivered an address at the Episcopal church Sunday morning, to a large audience. Rev. Bates held regular church services in the morning and evening.

Geo. Tracewell leased and opened the Valentine House to the public this week. Mr. Tracewell furnished the house newly throughout and intends running a first-class $1.00 per day house. We predict the new landlord success.

L. W. Russell, representing the large Milwaukee clothing factory of Friend Bros., was in town Tuesday. This is the house that made Milwaukee famous as a clothing market and has always been noted for the superior fit and finish of their garments.

The Rev. J. C. Sloan and son John were in town Tuesday and filed on a couple of homesteads in the western part of the county, where they will go into the stock business. We are glad to note that Rev. Sloan will become a citizen of this county, and hope he and his son will have complete success in their new venture.

J. A. Hooton has moved into the old Harris restaurant, opposite the Donohoe, and still retains the name of Valentine House for his hotel business. He also retains his old set of boarders, and if good rooms and fare are any criterion he will soon add many more to his list. His present location is even better than the old one, and his new rooms in the White property are far superior to the old.

Dick Pratt was in town Tuesday from southwest of Cody with the scalps of an old grey bitch wolf and seven pups. The old one was a monster in size and had killed at least five horses prior to her capture in Dick's trap. The young ones had scarcely gotten their eyes open when caught, but the bounty on them was the same as on the old one—$4 each. The dog belonging to this family has sprung five traps for Dick and escaped, but it is only a question of time until he will be captured.

Bros. Burleigh of the Star-Journal and Miles of the Home Rule came up from Ainsworth Sunday afternoon to see the writer and complete the program for the coming meeting of the Elkhorn Valley Editorial Association. As Ainsworth is a "dry" town we took the boys to the mill pond as soon as they arrived in town, and later walked them up the hill on the other side of the classic body of water referred to. To say that they were enchanted with Valentine, its people, resources and surroundings, and were so taken with the town that we had hard work to get them in bed before daylight. We fixed up the program all right, though, and if the meeting in June is not a success it will not be because Valentine inspiration is lacking.
