Two fatal accidents occurred near Gordon last week. While riding to a Sunday school picnic, Wednesday, Earl Jordan's pony fell, Earl's foot caught in the stirrup, the pony ran away and the boy was dragged about half a mile before the stirrup broke. He was dead when friends overtook him. The boy was 13 years old and was a son of J. C. Jordan, the well known hardware man. Monday, Ed. Wasmund, son of Treasurer Wasmund, met death in a curious way. While sliding off a hay stack he struck the handle of a fork which was sticking near, and the handle penetrated his body about eight inches. He lived about 24 hours after the accident.
