Waite says the boy is better than dred head of cattle to stock his Mer-return home.

ing been sold to Missouri parties several weeks ago from Woodlake, the

The woman's suffrage convention which was held here yesterday and the day before, attracted considerable attention, but so far as we know no new arguments were presented and no converts made.

C. F. Martin has accepted a position in this office and will soon blossom out into a full fledged printer. Clarence and the editor have long been like brothers, but this is the first time we have ever had the opportunity of 'bossing' him.

W. C. English, the Hospe piano man, was in town last week, but not for the purpose of selling pianos. If all reports are true after one of his visits here in the near future there will be a vacancy in the force of female assistants at Rosebud.

W. G. Ballard was in from his Dewy Lake ranch the first of the week. Lot of republicans are claiming that 'Bill' has forewarn his allegiance to the democratic party, but we must confess that we were unable to see any signs of backsliding while he was in town.

Dr. Ely, he who would like to be elected regent of the state university on the republican ticket, and who shamelessly mocked the old soldiers at Bassett, made several speeches in this county during the past week. We wish the republicans would import a few more speakers of his caliber.

H. P. McKnight sold his herd of cattle at public sale at his ranch south of Bassett on Tuesday of this week.
Although the crowd present was not large, the buyers were there and most excellent prices prevailed. P.
Peterson bought sixty-six head of two year old heifers at a cost of 35.50 per head. The Doctor expressed himself as much pleased with the result of the sale.—Longpine Journal.

At Woodlake last night Harrington had a rousing meeting, the school house being crowded, and a large number standing in the hall. The meeting was also addressed by Judge Selah and Mrs. Crawford, the latter making an especially good impression. If the people only knew these two candidates their majorities would be larger.

It is explained at last. Thackrey is the man who put the county on a cash basis. The increase in the amount and value of taxable property had nothing to do with it; Sullivan's six years labor for economy had nothing to do with it; 'McKinley prosperity' had nothing to do with it; the two orders of the county commissioners to the treasurer forcing him to do his duty had nothing to do with it. Oh, no; Thackrey did it all himself. Thackrey, the man who sent to Kansas for his office assistants, and like Mutz kept the money in the family; Thackrey, who while putting the county on a cash basis issued circulars labeling his brother officials and attacking the county's credit; Thackrey, who rather than employ carpenters did his own work and neglected his office duties; the man who was unable to get out more than one financial statement a year, and couldn't do that without assistance; the man who deliberately ignored his superior's orders; the man to whom many citizens paid taxes, and a couple of weeks later received duns for the same; Thackrey is the man who did it, and did it all alone.

The republicans went into ecstasies because they thought they had unexpectedly found a pure candidate for supreme judge. They claimed they had a candidate without a flaw—a politician of purest ray serene—a genuine anti-monopolist—a hater of railroad influence. But, alas, their hopes are already blasted. They said he was too dignified to enter into a scramble for office; yet he is already making political speeches and scrambling as hard as anybody. They said he was beaten for the nomination in 1889 because he was opposed to railroad domination, and now it turns out that he was laid on the shelf because he was a prohibi-tionist. They said he was too pure to behold iniquity, and then he is proven by the leading official organ of the party to be the subversive tool of monopolies. They said that he had been blameless in office, and then it comes out that he was the first of the supreme judges to increase his own salary by pensioning his wife and son on the state treasury under the pretense that said wife and son were trained stenographers. The whole state has been denouncing the supreme judges for nepotism in placing their relatives on the pay-roll, and now it appears that M. B. Reese is the very man who taught them this disgraceful trick. Reese was no better nor worse in this behalf than Post, Harrison or Norval, only these latter might not have thought of that shady way of recouping their finances if Reese hadn't taught them them how to do it.—Nonconformist.

The Ainsworth Journal calls the old soldier who wrote the letter in last week's paper a "camp follower," and without consulting Dr. Ely says the charges contained in the letter are untrue. This is one of Burleigh's bluffs, and we can prove the truth of the letter by half a dozen, or a score of afdavits if necessary.
