When General Grant was in Paris, the president of the republic, as a special token of respect, invited him to a place on the grand stand to witness the great racing which occurs in that country on Sunday. It is considered a discourteous act to dec'me such an invitation from the head official of the republic. Such a thing had never been heard of, but Gen. Grant, in a polite note, declined the honor, and said to the French president: "It is not in accordance with the custom of my country, or with the spirit of my religion to spend Sunday in that way."-National

Shall not the church today cry aloud and spare not against the awful evil of intemperance, the one gre t fronting sin of our time, destroying more lives and homes than all others combined? Gambling and prostitution are its allies. It paves the way for them both and nourishes them from first to last. This great sin ought to be met by the church and the ministry with an attack equal to its own wickedness and tremendous-
