EXTRACTS AND COMMENTS Of Prof. Chaffee's Lecture Monday Evening,

May 21st. The lecture was preceded by a recitation by Mrs. Watson, entitled "The Naughty Briar Rose," which was well received.

The following is a sketch of the subject, "A Prescription for Lean Folks." Mr. Chaffee begins without describing a lot of events that are only touched upon in the subject, but starts out with a humorous story told by the brother of Oliver Wendell Holmes, of a boy who was asked to take a piece of sticky cake which was said to be much better than it looked and it was to be hoped that it was. Then after getting the cake he was given a cup of tea and a saucer. The tea being hot it must be poured into the saucer, but holding the cake in one hand he could not understand how to perform the task until the thought occurred that he could hold the cake in his mouth while he poured his tea, and found himself in no better circumstances. Our worthy Professor then informed the audience that he would deal with lean, starved, cross, crabid, sour, selfish dispositions, not leanness
