

ROYAL

Baking Powder

Absolutely Pure

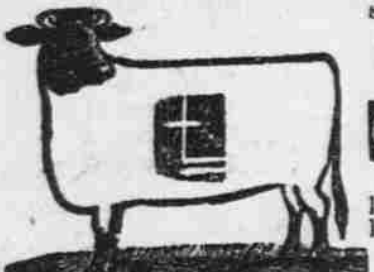

Makes hot breakfast-breads wholesome—no yeast germs, no alum. Makes cake, biscuit and pastry of superior fineness, flavor and delicacy. Makes food that will keep moist and sweet. Is most economical, because it is the purest and greatest in leavening strength. In the easy, expeditious preparation of the finer cakes and pastries, Royal is indispensable.

Care must be taken to avoid baking powders made from alum. Such powders are sold cheap, because they cost but a few cents per pound. Not only will they spoil the cake, but alum is a corrosive acid, which taken in food means injury to health.

CAN'T BE ELECTED!

Special to the World-Herald.

Hastings, Neb., Oct. 17—A bombshell was exploded in the republican camp in Hastings today. The Daily Republican, the oldest, largest and strongest republican newspaper in Central and Western Nebraska, prints the straight fusion ticket at the head of its editorial columns, and announces that it will no longer submit to the leadership of such men as Hanna, Thompson, Rosewater, Dietrich and Morlan.

It says: "For twelve years the Republican has been a republican newspaper. Since 1888 it has made as best it could, a clean, honest, manly fight for republican policies and measures and has supported republican nominees for office. Proud of its affiliation with the party of Lincoln and Sumner, of Seward and Chase, of Grant and Blaine and Garfield and Harrison, glorying in the record these great leaders had made, and in the ideas of American government for which they had stood, the Republican has lent their party cheerful and loyal support. We can accord that support no longer. From now henceforth the Republican will be found advocating the election of the man who stands for the same fundamental principles for which Abraham Lincoln lived and died—William Jennings Bryan.

"It will be found supporting fusion policies and fusion candidates because they represent those policies. It will do this because it finds it easier to adhere to the principles in which it has always believed and which the republican party has abandoned and discarded than to follow that party in the desertion of those principles. With this statement of fact it desires in justice to its readers as well as in justice to itself to indicate briefly the conditions which have made this announcement imperative.

"The republican party once stood for principle, for noble deeds, for American ideas, for devotion to duty. It was a party led by thoughtful, patriotic and earnest men. It represented what was best and most healthful in American politics. That was before what Governor Pingree denominates 'that Ohio crowd' got hold of it. It was before the views of Hannamism was inoculated in its veins. Since that time the republican party has undergone a transformation as startling and deplorable as it is complete and undeniable.

"Today the Burlington railroad is the supreme dictator of Nebraska republicanism. It gave us C. H. Dietrich as a nominee for governor. The Republican has no personal enmity or malice for Mr. Dietrich, but in all candor we submit he is not a fit man to be governor of Nebraska. The mere fact that every Christian minister of his own city is openly opposing him, that many of the best republican business men of his own city declare that they cannot give him their vote, speaks more forcefully than anything the Republican might say as to Mr. Dietrich's qualifications for the office to which he aspires.

Herman, Neb., Oct. 17.—The fusion forces are rejoicing and the republicans correspondingly sad at the announcement of the Herman Advertiser that it has deserted the republican party and at the same time hoists the fusion ticket at its masthead.

Hastings, Neb., Oct. 19.—The railroad republicans of Hastings and vicinity again have cause to congregate in groups and utter imprecations that the ears of fusionists cannot conscientiously listen to. Almost simultaneously with the conversion of the Daily Republican to the fusion faith comes an editorial from the Weekly News, which paper has been giving Dietrich half-hearted support, which absolutely dispels from the mind of every reasonable person here any hope that Charles H. Dietrich will ever act as governor of the state of Nebraska.

The editor of the News is John S. Williams, who is also editor of the Hastings Merchandise Reporter and as such is in close touch with the business men of this part of the country. In a strong editorial of this week's issue Mr. Williams tells why he thinks Dietrich cannot be elected. The following is the editorial as it appears in this week's issue of the Weekly News: "After the first burst of enthusiasm over the nomination of Charles H. Dietrich had subsided, there has been a growing feeling against seating him in the gubernatorial chair that is well worthy of serious consideration. It is true that every citizen in the city of Hastings and Adams county has a pardonable pride in the fact that one of her citizens has been selected for the highest office in the state, and from this fact alone, many may consider themselves in honor bound to support the man that otherwise would be unthought of.

REASON FOR CHANGE.

"The News, like many others, at first was inclined to overlook the grave defects in our home candidate, and believing that the best results to the public and especially the city might be accomplished by his election, a silent acquiescence has been maintained. Such it now believes would be an injustice to our patrons, and would result in being worse for not only the state but the city as well, should Mr. Dietrich succeed in carrying the election. There are many grave reasons for this fear, so many in fact, that in looking over the field they appear almost universal.

"In the first place Mr. Dietrich has always supported an antagonistic faction in his own party and this zeal, in many cases, has maintained many bitter controversies that have in no ways enhanced the public welfare of the city. Private and personal interests have with him always outweighed either public rights or public good. And from this fact alone, if we judge the future by the past, it means that the same spirit will be carried into state affairs which will be dominated by his personal prejudice and passions in a way that will not reflect benefit or credit upon either this city or the state.

"A serious menace to the people's welfare is his unswerving allegiance to well known railroads of this state. It was not always the case. The memory of his organizing the celebrated boycott against the Burlington system is fresh in the remembrance of many of our leading business men. They tell about the energy with which he pushed the case against the road and cursed the ever grasping powers of gigantic corporations, until he received a telegram from the manager of the system to enjoy an outing in a special car with himself and the late James Laird, United States representative, through Wyoming. His allegiance and pass over the system are said to have dated from this instant, and the question has often been asked if this was the only consideration. However this may be, no man has stood higher with Mr. Holdrege than has Mr. Dietrich.

"His trips to Hanna—As it will be remembered, it was to him the selection for the site for the new depot was left and its entire details were entrusted. His many trips to Washington and his conference with Senator Hanna and the use of the many privileges which the railroad management has showered upon him, leaves undeniably and unquestioned who constitutes the real life and backbone of the present campaign. Whether the acceptance of such privileges does not imply conditions which necessarily are directed in opposition to the interests of the great mass of the people and taxpayers of Nebraska is the question which the voter must determine. And if so, would not such conditions outweigh all minor interests which would accrue to favored individuals in this city?

"The fact that Mr. Dietrich is a banker will cut little or no figure in this, his home county, but the fact that his interests were never identical with the great common people, and that among this class there is neither following nor admiration for the man or his qualifications, is a serious feature that will be manifested on election day. No combination among any one class can carry a man into office, and the large brewery in Omaha that asked a city business man if a certain saloon keeper would obtain his license for next year on account of his opposition to Dietrich shows a manipulation that thinking people will see is counteracted. The silent and apparent acquiescence of many leaders in his own party by no means indicate that they are blind to all of these grave and serious features, and that many a ballot will be marked against him by the conscientious republican voter when he enters the booth on election day, is well known to us all.

"Some other features well known to every resident in this city carry a weight little dreamed of by the state at large. Our citizens, we are pleased to say, have risen above all personal feeling or partial zeal, and on the broad standard of that which is best for the city, the county, and the state will their ballots be cast."—Special to The Omaha World Herald.

THE DECLARATION.

When a party becomes so corrupt as to attack the Declaration of Independence and say of it that it was written by candle light in a day when people didn't know any better and that we are wiser now, it illustrates to the common people that a change is only wanted by men of corrupt political morals.

Any effort to change that priceless document, or any part of it, will be looked upon by all honest, liberty-loving people as a blow to liberty and the beginning of decay in our government.

The Declaration of Independence was good enough for our forefathers of revolutionary times. It lasted through the war of 1812 to 14, the Mexican war of 1846 to 48, and the great civil war when our land was bathed in blood for forty years. It has been taught to every school boy and school girl for the past 124 years, and held up as the Idol of our Liberty. Its praises have been sung throughout our land by every human tongue. It has been read from every platform and eulogized by all our greatest men of earlier times as the grandest and most wonderful article ever framed by man, and millions of our people congregate every 4th of July to do reverence and to commemorate its adoption. J. Q. Adams said of it: "The Declaration of Independence! The interest which, in that paper, has survived the occasion upon which it was issued,—the interest which is of every age and every clime,—the interest which quickens with the lapse of years, spreads as it grows old, and brightens as it recedes,—is in the principles which it proclaims. It was the first solemn declaration by a Nation of its only legitimate foundation of civil government. It was the corner stone of a new fabric, destined to cover the surface of the globe. It demolished, at a stroke, the lawfulness of all governments founded upon conquest. It swept away all the rubbish of accumulated centuries of servitude. It announced, in practical form, to the world, the transcendent truth of the inalienable sovereignty of the People.

"It stands, and must forever stand, alone; a beacon on the summit of the mountain, to which all the inhabitants of the earth may turn their eyes, for a general and saving light, till time shall be lost in eternity and this globe itself dissolve, nor leave a wreck behind. It stands forever, a light of admonition to the rulers of men, a light of salvation and redemption to the oppressed. So long as this planet shall be inhabited by human beings, so long as man shall be of a social nature, so long as government shall be necessary to the great moral purposes of society so long as it shall be abused to the purposes of oppression,—so long shall this declaration hold out, to the sovereign and the subject, the extent and the boundaries of their respective rights and duties, founded in the laws of Nature and of Nature's God."

Henry Clay said in defense of Jefferson, the writer of it: "In 1801, he snatched from the rude hand of usurpation the violated Constitution of his country,—and that is his crime. He preserved that instrument, in form, and substance, and spirit, a precious inheritance for generations to come."

Will you, now, my brother, say aught against that most precious of all instruments, the priceless gem that has been held dear to every American heart and treasured as a child his parent? Will you not drown and forever choke and throttle that partisan spirit that prompts you to cheer when the foul mouth of a traitor to our own beloved state lifts his voice against that article that made us a free people—that our forefathers fought, bled and died to save. Aye, further than that, every true, loyal patriot is still ready to die for it called upon. Hands off, traitors! Who dares destroy or even scar the Star of Liberty?
