C. B. Chamberlin, M. D., writes from 14th and P Sts., Washington, D. C.:
"Many cases have come under my observation, where Peruna has benefited and cured. Therefore, I cheerfully recommend it for catarrh and a general tonic."—C. B. CHAMBERLIN, M. D.

Medical Examiner U. S. Treasury,
 Dr. Llewellyn Jordan, Medical Examiner of U. S. Treasury Department, graduate of Cornell College and who served three years at West Point, has the following to say of Peruna:
 "Allow me to express my gratitude to you for the benefit derived from your wonderful remedy. One short month has brought forth a vast change and I now consider myself a well man after months of suffering. Fellow-sufferers, Peruna will cure you."—Dr. Llewellyn Jordan.
 Geo. C. Havener, M. D., of Anacostia, D. C., writes:
 The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:
 Gentlemen—"In my practice I have had occasion to frequently prescribe your valuable medicine, and have found its use beneficial, especially in cases of catarrh."—George C. Havener, M. D.
 If you do not receive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Fooled the Hackman.
 Binkers—"All this talk about hackmen overcharging is nonsense. I use hacks whenever I am out with my wife, and the drivers never try to get a cent more than the regular fare."
 Winkers—"How do you manage?"
 Binkers—"Very simply. I merely remark in a loud tone to my wife that I'm glad she's through shopping at last. After the hackman hears that he is thankful to get what I actually owe him."

A Fault of Eyeglasses.
 The ophthalmic surgeon in the Richmond Hospital, Dublin, has noticed a rather singular effect of wearing eyeglasses of the kind which derive their support from pinching the bridge of the nose. Their weight proved sufficient to displace the lower eyelid scarcely more than a hundredth of an inch but enough to cause a flow of tears. Few noses are so shaped that there is any danger of such a result following the use of eyeglasses, but the possibility is worth considering. Spectacles give the wearer a somewhat older look than eyeglasses, but are not likely to induce the trouble here described.

The Tile Inlet and Outlet.
 No one will question the value of tile for drainage pipes. In laying head end of tile, it is a mistake to dump in a few pieces of broken tile and mud dug from the slough bed with the idea of packing to make nearly waterproof. Many have done that in this section and the water failing to run off, a complaint is made that tiling does not pay. I have known men to dig up whole ditches of tile and replace with larger ones, when a little work in the right way would have brought things out all right. A correctly built tile inlet and outlet are absolutely essential for success in drainage. Where soil is of a mucky nature, the illustration shows a good plan of filling in around the inlet. This plan, however, is not necessary where soil is mossy. About four or five feet of tile should be covered with coarse gravel to within six or eight inches of the surface, so the plow will not strike the stone. This will let the water off freely, yet keep the soil in good shape. A large stone should be placed at end of tile.

The outlet should also be kept clean of roots and bars of netting so placed that the vermin may be kept out. If this is done and the tile properly laid, water will have easy going and the farmer will go his way rejoicing instead of "cussing" the tile which he thought was too small.—Fred Ristrim, in Farm and Home.

DURABLE TILE OUTLET.

Good Farm Gate.
 A heavy gate that is opened a number of times daily is apt to sag in a short time if not well braced. An excellent way of overcoming this fault is shown in the illustration. The posts are longer than those ordinarily used, and are set a foot deeper in the ground than fence posts generally. Heavy flat stones are placed about the bottom of the post, to which the gate is hung, and these stones are braced on either side by stout oak stakes. These stakes are driven so that the tops are just below the surface of the ground. Three strong hinges are used to hang the gate and a strong rod of iron is fastened to the upright of the gate and to the top bar. This helps greatly in keeping the gate from warping or "racking" out at the joints. The latch fastening, though simple, is effective. A slot is cut through the front upright of the gate and the tongue of the latch run through it. A slot is mortised in the post, as shown in the illustration, and the tongue run in, which gives a secure fastening. The latch or tongue is hung from the bar of the gate by means of two pieces of hard smooth wood, bolted together, with the tongue between the lower ends. The bolt which runs through the bar of the gate is loose enough to permit the tongue to be pushed backward and forward when the gate is to be opened and closed.

Cabbage Hard on Soil.
 Those who attempt to grow cabbage on a large scale should bear in mind that the crop uses up large quantities of plant food and is especially hard on the potash in the soil. This being the case it is necessary to fertilize heavily for cabbage, and especially using potash. Muriate of potash is the best to use and the least expensive. Of course other fertilizers should also be used. A good plan is to use the stable product, supplementing it with muriate of potash, and also to use heavy applications of lime which releases the plant food in the soil.

Principles of Pruning.
 While the proper pruning of trees will not, by any means, insure their fruitfulness, it will have more to do with it than even experienced orchardists think. It is a lamentable fact that not one man in ten knows how to properly prune a fruiting tree; it is also to be regretted that more fruit growers do not better understand that proper pruning largely means yearly pruning and not a general slaughter of the limbs and twigs every three or four years. This general practice simply means urging the tree to make a heavy growth of wood which is not needed. In pruning, the experienced orchardist cuts but slightly the strong limbs, but wields his knife and shears vigorously on the light branches and twigs growing on the inside and on the underside of the tree. This is the general rule and most growers of experience practice it with all fruit trees, although in recent years expert fruit growers seem inclined to take out the stronger wood on peach trees, although this plan is mainly to get the tree headed low; still the peach often requires different treatment from other orchard trees which may best be determined by experiments with different plans, for while general principles may be laid down it is not possible to cover in such directions local conditions.

Crows and Corn.
 My experience is that one cannot keep crows from cornfields any easier or more surely than by stringing up twine about the fields, occasionally adding a crossline. From my earliest recollection this was our practice, and we suffered very little from crows; while our neighbors, who depended on scarecrows, guas, tuwars or corn soaked in tar, came out much worse. We always saved the twine from year to year, as it has to come down with the first cultivation, and it is still strong. As to watching a field with a shotgun, it sometimes needs grit that would go through a South African war, especially if a colony of crows get it "in" for a field. A neighbor two years ago opened such a campaign, and had to shoot eighteen crows, fairly finishing the entire flock, before what was left of the field was saved. It is safe to say that the crop was a good many bushels cut down by what was taken, even then. I believe in crows, as they live on insects and mice from preference; but they must live or die, and if preferred food is not plentiful, they will do crops harm. Better, then, adopt a harmless way of driving them from cornfields.—Correspondence Country Gentleman.

A Sheep Record.
 A Missouri sheep grower has made a record which he thinks stands near the top, if it is not ahead of all others. Last spring his forty-three Shropshire ewes dropped eighty-five lambs, among which were seven sets of triplets, twenty-eight sets of twins and eight single lambs. He lost six by death, and killed two for his personal use. The remaining seventy-seven lambs were let to run on wheat and other pasture last fall, and later were given about twenty bushels of corn to put them in marketable condition. When sold they averaged 163 pounds each, and were reported "fat as butter," selling at $6.25, the highest price in a year or more at Kansas City. An income of about $500 beside the wool from forty-three ewes makes it look as if well-bred Shropshire were a good kind of sheep to invest in.—American Cultivator.

Grow Alfalfa.
 Considerable has been said in this department in favor of alfalfa and the prediction is now made that in less than five years the farm where more or less alfalfa is not grown will be an exception to the general rule. The only possible objection that can be urged against alfalfa is that it cannot be cut for hay the first season after sowing the seed. This is a silly objection, for certainly one can afford to miss this cutting if thereby they establish a permanent meadow that may be cut after the first year, several times during the season. It has been demonstrated that the feeding value of alfalfa is very great, one authority claiming that in a feeding test 96 pounds of alfalfa gave the same returns as 100 pounds of wheat bran.

Keeping Butter.
 Good butter will keep sweet for many weeks when it is placed in a crock after being made into rolls, wrapped in strong cheesecloth or old muslin and then covered with a brine solution enough to bear up an egg. Saltpeter and sugar may be added to advantage while the brine is still hot in the proportion of a teaspoonful of the former and a tablespoonful of the latter to every four quarts. The brine must, however, not be poured upon the butter until it is entirely cold.

Salt the Cows Regularly.
 Sometimes for different reasons butter after it comes will not gather readily. Neglecting to salt the cows regularly will sometimes produce this effect. Keeping the milk or cream until it is too old is a very common cause. Sometimes too much wheat or barley chop as a feed will be the cause.
