WONDERFUL BROECK

THE ORIGINAL SPOTLESS TOWN IS IN NORTHERN HOLLAND.

A Nentness and a Brilliancy That Are Absolutely Painful Pervade the Whole Place-Rules Which the Inhabitants Must Observe.

Far up in northern Holland among the dikes and canals of the little kingdom lies Broeck, the original Spotless Town. The palings of the fences of Broeck are sky blue. The streets are paved with shining bricks of many colors. The houses are rose colored, black, gray, purple, light blue or pale green. The doors are painted and gilded. For hours you may not see a soul in the streets or at the windows. The streets and houses, bridges, windows and barns show a neatness and a brilliancy that are absolutely painful. At every step a new effect is disclosed, a new scene is beheld, as if painted upon the drop curtain of a stage. Everything is minute, compact, painted, spotless and clean. In the houses of Broeck for cleaning purposes you will find big brooms, little brooms, toothbrushes, aqua fortis, whiting for the window panes, rouge for the forks and spoons, coal dust for the copper, emery for the iron utensils, brick powder for the floors and even small splinters of wood with which to pick out the tiny bits of straw in the cracks between the bricks. Here are some of the rules of this wonderful town:

Citizens must leave their shoes at the loor when entering a house. Before or after sunset no one is allowed to smoke excepting with a pipe having a cover, so that the ashes will not be scattered upon the street. Any one crossing the village on horseback must get out of the saddle and lead A cuspidor shall be kept by the front door of each house, where it may be accessible from the window. It is forbidden to cross the village in a carriage or to drive animals through the

In addition to these established rules it is the custom for every citizen who sees a leaf or a bit of straw blown before his house by the wind to pick it ip and throw it into the canal. The people go 500 paces out of the village to dust their shoes. Dozens of boys are paid to blow the dust from between the bricks in the streets four times an hour. In certain houses the guests are carried over the threshold so as not to soil the pavements. At one time the mania for cleaning in Broeck reached such a point that the housewives of the village neglected even their religious duties for scrubbing and washing. The village pastor, after trying every sort of persuasion, preached a long sermon, in which he declared that every Dutchwoman who had faithfully fulfilled her duties toward God in this world would find in the next a house packed full of furniture and stored with the most various and precious articles of use and ornament, which, not being distracted by other occupations, she would be able to brush, wash and polish for all eternity. The promise of this sublime recompense and the thought of this extreme happiness filled the women with such fervor and piety that for cause for complaint. Around every house in Broeck are buckets, benches, rakes, hoes and stakes, all colored red, blue, white or yellow. The brilliancy and variety of colors and the cleanliness, brightness and miniature pomp of the place are wonderful. At the windows there are embroidered curtains, with rose colored ribbons. The blades, bands and nails of the gayly painted windmills shine like silver. The houses are brightly varnished and surrounded with red and white railings and fences. The panes of glass in the windows are bordered by many lines of different hues. The trunks of all the trees are | the queen wore it she would never be painted gray from root to branch. Across the streams are many little wooden bridges, each painted as white as snow. The gutters are ornamented with a sort of wooden festoon, perforated like lace. The pointed facades are surmounted with a small weathercock, a little lance or something resembling a bunch of flowers. Nearly every house has two doors, one in front and one behind, the last for everyday entrance and exit and the former opened only on great occasions, such as births, deaths and mar-

The gardens are as peculiar as the houses. The paths are hardly wide enough to walk in. One could put his arm around the flowerbeds. The persons sitting close together. The little myrtle hedges would scarcely reach to the knees of a four-year-old child. Between the arbors and the flower the following, the first one being on side and hip | beds run little canals which seem made to float paper boats. They are crossed by miniature wooden bridges, with colored pillars and parapets. There are ponds the size of a bath, which are almost concealed by lilliputian boats tied with red cords to blue stakes, tiny staircases and miniature kitchen gardens. Everything could be de udder. Ah 'spec' he bettah begin measured with the hand, crossed at a leap, demolished by a blow. Moreover, there are trees cut in the shape of fans, plumes and disks, with their trunks colored white and blue. At every step one discovers a new effect, a fresh combination of hues, a novel caprice, some new absurdity. The rooms are very tiny and resemble so many bazaars. There are porcelain figures on the cupboard, Chinese cups and sugar bowls on and under the tables, plates fastened on the walls, clocks, ostrich eggs, shells, vases, plates, glasses, placed in every corner and concealed in every nook, cupboards full of hundreds of trifles aud ornaments without name, a crowding disorder and utter confusion of colors.-Public Opinion.

A RESTORATION BEAU.

The history of an ordinary day of a restoration beau was something like this: From about 10 till 12 he received visitors in his sleeping chamber, where he lay in state, with his periwig, thickly powdered, lying beside him on the coverlet. Near at hand, on his dressing table, the curious visitor might have noticed some little volumes of amatory verse, a canister of Lisbon or Spanish snuff, a smelling bottle and perhaps a few fashionable trinkets. As soon as he deemed proper the beau arose and with incredible difficulty proceeded to put on all his charms, to perfume his garments, to soak his hands in washes for the sake of producing whiteness and delicacy, to tinge his cheeks with carminative in order to give them that gentle blush which nature had denied them, to arrange a number of patches upon his face so as to produce the effect of moles and dimples, to dip his pocket handkerchief in rosewater and to powder his linen so as to banish from it the smell of soap, to consume a quarter hay field for A. Benson. He looks as of an hour in the attempt to fasten his cravat, so long again in the endeavor to adjust his wig and to "cock" his hat, as long again in the contemplation of his charms in the looking glass and as long again in the practice of such smiles as would display to the best advantage the ivory whiteness of his teeth-these were the processes through which he who desired to figure as a beau of the first magnitude was compelled in that age to pass.

The character of the beau, so far as his outward and personal appearance was concerned, was now complete, and as in those days fashionable gentlemen used their legs to a much less extent than they do now our imaginary beau would have directed his valet to order a sedan chair without delay. Into this, he stepped and was borne to the fashionable haunt-to the mall in St. James park or perhaps to the more ceremonious parade in Hyde parkwhere, like a butterfly, he delighted to flutter in the train of some jilting beauty, who gloried in nothing so who was perfectly willing for the nonce to furnish him with an excuse for toasting her in a tavern at night .-Gentleman's Magazine.

Queen Elizabeth's Amulet. Queen Elizabeth during her last ill ness wore around her neck a charm made of gold which had been bequeathed her by an old woman in Wales, who declared that so long as ill. The amulet, as was generally the case, proved of no avail, and Elizabeth, notwithstanding her faith in the charm, not only sickened, but died. During the plague in London people wore amulets to keep off the dread destroyer. Amulets of arsenic were worn near the heart. Quills of quicksilver were hung around the neck, and also the powder of toads.

The Absentminded Professor.

At a session of the German reichstag an absentminded member, Herr Wichmann, created no little amusement He was calling the roll, and upon reaching his own name he paused for a response. Naturally none came. Then he called the name more loudly, waited dainty arbors would barely hold two a few seconds and roared it out at the top of his voice. The laughter of his colleagues finally aroused him to a sense of the ludicrousness of his act. and he joined in the general hilarity.

sorry, for we will see less of her. Some of the neighbors seem to think it more profitable to stack hay than to attend church on Sunday. Wonder where they will be admitted for such transgressions. The ice cream social which was to have been given in Clear Lake Union church on the 12th was postponed indefinitely. If anybody was disappointed by the change, please forgive the correspondent's part,

Since Arabia has been infested by beautiful women the young men have taken new attractions. We notice John arrayed in his very best and looking radient, while Mike has removed the bandage from his head and declares much as "an equipage of fools" and that he feels better than ever. No matter how morose and dejected a man feels, he will lose sight of his former troubles at the approach of a beautiful woman.

M. J. Jordan has made a demand that the school house be moved, as he wants to use that particular site for building purposes, therefore a specia school meeting was convened on the 12th. The majority of the people are in favor of the building remaining where it is so unless the school board can make satisfactory arrangements with Jordan the case may reach the district court for final decision.

or more information on the subject of cid branding for cattle. The old ethod of using the heated iron is slow, uel and dangerous on account of fire. In our first issue we mentioned that Bown county ranchmen had been aking experiments with acid brand. pon consulting those who have used the acid we find a variety of opinions prevail as to its value. Some say they did not get a plain brand, others complain that the acid spread and made the brands wide. All agree that its application is easy and safe, and the question of plainness seems to be the only doubt. We believe that in the near future the old and cruel methods will be relics of the past and will be no longer practiced. Someone has invented a branding iron that is heated by gasoline on the inside, which when filled with gasoline lasts three hours.

and will last for years. Acid branding i- worthy of more careful experiments. There is a demand for something easily and painlessly applied.-The Western
