CAUSES

Palpitation of the Heart, Cold Hands and Feet, Sinking Feelings—Pe-ru-na Cures Catarrh Wherever Located.

Mrs. X. Schneider, 2409 Thirty-seventh Place, Chicago, Ill., writes:

"After taking several remedies without result, I began in January, 1901, to take your valuable remedy, Peruna. I was a complete wreck. Had palpitation of the heart, cold hands and feet, female weakness, no appetite, trembling, sinking feeling nearly all the time. You said I was suffering with systemic catarrh, and I believe that I received your help in the nick of time. I followed your directions carefully and can say today that I am well again. I cannot thank you enough for my cure. I will always be your debtor. I have already recommended Peruna to my friends and neighbors and they all praise it. I wish that all suffering women would try it. I testify this according to the truth."—Mrs. X. Schneider.

One woman has dyspepsia, another bronchitis, another Bright's disease, another liver complaint, another consumption, another female complaint. These women would be very much surprised to hear that they are all suffering with chronic catarrh. But it is so, nevertheless.

Each one of these troubles and a great many more are simply catarrh—that is, chronic inflammation of the mucous lining of whichever organ is affected. Any internal remedy that will cure catarrh in one location will cure it in any other. This is why Peruna has become so justly famous in the cure of female diseases. It cures catarrh wherever located. Its cures remain. Peruna does not palliate—it cures.

Hon. Joseph B. Crowley, Congressman from Illinois, writes from Robinson, Ill., the following praise for the great catarrhal tonic, Peruna. Congressman Crowley says:

"Mrs. Crowley has taken a number of bottles of Peruna on account of nervous troubles. It has proven a strong tonic and lasting cure. I can cheerfully recommend it."—J. B. Crowley.

Sowing Crimson Clover.

The seeds of crimson clover, when sown in corn, are put in at the last cultivation of the corn, in July or August, according to locality and the growth of the corn. It is the general practice to simply scratch the seed in and while this is often sufficient it results in loss in seasons when drought prevails or even when the season is only a little more than ordinarily dry. Twelve to fifteen pounds of seed should be used per acre, and it should be put in just before the last cultivation of the corn so that the latter process will cover it well. Of course it will not stand the winter in all sections, but if handled in the manner suggested it will do well in most sections where the red clover succeeds. The feeding value of clover hay is high, as is its fertilizing value, to say nothing of the value of having a clover crop on the soil during the winter, so that every farmer should make great efforts to be mowed three or four times during the season, being also, like millet, a weed destroyer.

Chance for Eastern Farmers.

The high price of cattle is leading many of our New England farmers to raise their calves and to use more steers and oxen on the farm; and, in fact, to be in line to have more cattle to sell year by year. This is a healthy sign for New England agriculture, as nothing seems to be such clear gain as turning off a pair or two of fat cattle every year. Cattle raising has been too much neglected in the New England States during the past twenty years and it is a pleasure to note that on many farms cattle husbandry is again coming to the front. No better beef in the world is raised than that which is pastured on New England hillsides even if it topped off with Western corn, though we believe that cattle husbandry will lead to large areas of corn fodder and corn to be harvested in the grain. Nothing seems to improve the farm faster than increased attention to the producing of beef and raising the necessary fodder crops and grain crops.—M. J. Husetts Ploughman.

Colt Inherits Speed.

The colt Gerald McKinnie, is the property of Wm. M. McKinnie, of Fort Wayne, Ind., and without doubt inherits extreme speed. A glance at his row on such occasions, to the great increase of its capacity. The side pieces should be hardwood strips. The attachment may be supported by hooks from the strips to the top of the wheelbarrow's back if preferred.

Fertilizing the Strawberry.

From a careful study of the anatomy of the strawberry plant the Wisconsin station is of the opinion that a liberal top dressing with fine manure or a very fertile soil after the fruiting season is the most rational method of fertilizing the strawberry plantation. This dressing protects the crowns of the plants from excessive summer heat and furnishes the young roots with abundant nourishment throughout the growing season, developing strong plants which are able to store up in the short stems a good supply of reserve material for the first leaf growth the following spring.

Quality of Eggs.

We often hear people say that eggs from some breeds of fowls are richer than those from others, and that those with dark shells are richer than those with white shells. Such differences, or, rather, the source of such differences is purely imaginary. Neither the breed nor the color of the shell affect the quality of the egg. It is the food, and that alone, which affects the flavor and delicate quality of the egg. If hens are carefully fed on wholesome foods they will remain healthy, and their eggs will be very different from those laid by poorly conditioned hens.

Hay Crop Substitute.

There is always an excellent substitute for clover and timothy when the hay crop is short, and that is millet. It is a quick-growing summer crop that may be seeded in May or June, and it seldom fails to produce a large yield of hay. It is also one of the best indicators of weeds that can be used, and it grows so rapidly as to crowd the weeds to destruction. A crop of Hungarian grass may also be seeded down for a summer yield of hay, as it may picture can but convince one of his wonderful development of bone and muscle. His sire is the great Cresceus, with a trotting record of 2:02 1/4, who is rich in the best blood of American trotters. He holds six world's wagon and harness records on mile and half mile tracks, and it is predicted by those who are judges that he will yet go a mile in two minutes flat. Mr. Ketchum, of Toledo, the owner of Cresceus, trains and drives his own horse. The dam of Gerald McKinnie (Mary Centivire, 2:12) was a wonderful mare, possessing speed equal to the sire, and some are of the opinion more. She had to her credit a half mile paced in 59 1/2 seconds. Her family relations are high class and among the fastest. She was purchased by Mr. McKinnie of the Centivire Brothers. The Gerald colt at the time the picture was taken was four months old. He is a beautiful black, with not a white hair on him, and shows a wonderful gait for his age.

To Mend a Broken Leg.

A broken leg of a fine young pure-bred pullet was mended by winding carefully with surgeon's plaster, which can be bought for a few cents per roll at the drug store. It is not the same as court plaster. Wind closely, the courses overlapping, but not so tightly as to stop circulation. The bird was turned loose at once and received no further care, but the leg seems as good as ever after four or five weeks.—D. H. B. in Farm and Home.

Fruits on Rented Farms.

The Metropolitan and Rural Home gives the following sensible advice. Fruits should be planted and kept up on rented farms. There is no reason why a landlord should not take interest and see that the tenants are supplied with small fruits, grapes, etc. The leases should be for a long time, and plants and vines should be furnished, the renter to plant and take care of them. Strawberries fruit the year after planting, raspberries the second year, blackberries and grapes the third year and tree fruits from the third to the seventh year. There is no reason why both landlord and tenant should not take an interest in these things.

Lima Beans.

Lima beans demand considerable potash and lime. Wood ashes are consequently beneficial to them, but if ashes are unobtainable the potash salts will be found excellent. A light application of nitrate of soda will give the young plants a good start.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY.

A Senator Who Knew but Little About Police Affairs.

One of the press associations recently sent away on another mission one of its men—the regular man assigned to the White House—and put a new man in his place. Well, this new man was a good reporter in his old field, but he had no extensive acquaintance among public men, such as is necessary in handling the White House news. The new man took his place in the news paper corps on duty there and was getting along swimmingly. When the old man of the force "held up" public men he joined in the process and became quite familiar with some of the frequenters of the White House. One day Senator Dietrich of Nebraska strolled in and walked into President Roosevelt's room.

"Who's that?" inquired the new reporter, as Senator Dietrich went in.

"Oh, that's Lieut. Kenney of the tenth precinct."

"Oh, yes," said the new man. "I have met him, I believe, and I will see him when he comes out."

Senator Dietrich came out in due time, and the new man went for him in good style.

"Oh, lieutenant," called the reporter to the Senator, who was a few paces ahead.

Senator Dietrich turned around to meet his questioner, but didn't show that he was anything else than a polite lieutenant.

"How are police affairs? Talk to the President about anything interesting?" queried the new reporter.

Senator Dietrich's face assumed a puzzled expression, but he answered: "No, I didn't talk with the President about anything of importance."

By this time the old-timers in the White House corps were about to explode with laughter, but held in until the new man had asked: "How is the mounted squad getting on, lieutenant?" and then they burst into an uncontrollable uproar, which was joined in by Senator Dietrich himself. The new man didn't laugh, but made a few curt remarks and proceeded to explain that he had been "jollied" and was sorry that he had bothered the Senator. The latter accepted the apologies and went away laughing to himself.—Washington Star.

PLOTS AGAINST LOUIS PHILIPPE

Several Attempts Upon the Life of the King of the French.

Louis Philippe, king of the French after experiencing several minor attempts on his life, was nearly murdered July 28, 1835. The day was one of the three appointed to commemorate the revolution of 1830. The king was with three of his sons, taking part in a procession, and while riding along the boulevards a violent explosion issued from a window overlooking the line of route. Happily, the king himself and the princes escaped uninjured, though fourteen persons were killed outright and forty others wounded. Or investigation the discharge was discovered to have come from a machine constructed of twenty-four musket barrels, laid horizontally on a single frame and so adjusted as to be raised or lowered according to the angle required says the Gentleman's Magazine. The tonholes communicated by means of a train of gunpowder, and consequently simultaneously. The window behind which this deadly contrivance was placed stood open, but Persian blinds not opened until the moment of discharge, screened it from the public gaze. It is probable that, owing to some delay in removing the blinds, the life of Louis Philippe was saved. He had hardly passed when the exploser occurred, actually wounding the horse he rode. The man who was guilty of the outrage, a Corsican named Fieschi, was seized and subsequently guillotined. Three more attempts were made on the life of the same monarch. One by the discharge of a walking-stick gun into his carriage June 25, 1836; another, at Fontainebleau, in April, 1846 while the third and final act of the kind may be recorded as having happened when the king was standing on the balcony of the Tuilleries one day in June, 1846.

Haitian Honesty.

Haiti is the only country in the world "where black rules white." Although the present republic is not successful because so large a portion of the citizens are lazy and uneducated, yet the people have many good qualities which according to Hesketh Pritchard, show themselves in unexpected and contradictory ways.

One of the things that strike one most is that Haiti is a country of extremes and contrasts. Logic is always at fault. A Haitian's honesty is like a Haitian's mind; it is apt to surprise you round odd corners.

For example: Hundreds of thousands of Haitian dollars pass annually along the lonely track between Jacmel and Port au Prince. The men who bear them are low-class Haitians; ragged, uncouth, uneducated, wild and untutored. Yet only once have the dollars failed to arrive. I have heard it said that ten dollars might tempt the Haitian's cupidity, but ten thousand awes him into immaculate honesty.

During the last thirty years uncounted couriers have made the desolate journey over the mountain passes, each with his load of wealth, and there is only this one instance known of the betrayal of trust. A fine record!
