

The infant and orphan child left by Mrs. J. Morrisson, who died at her home in Gordon a few months ago, is also dead. This child was at the home of its grandmother, Mrs. Henry Young, of the Rosebud reservation. Parties were in from that neighborhood this morning for the burial casket, but we did not learn the time and cause of the child's death.—Cody Cow Boy.

An Open Letter to the Town Board and Voters.

November 25, 1903.

Gentlemen: In former letters to the town board I have not blamed the saloon keepers for their violation of the laws. The majority of them are in the business, not for the desire to be looked down upon as a saloon keeper or because they love to sell stuff to a man that they know will ruin him for life and for eternity, or because they want to have, as frequently happens here, a half drunken man curse them and call them all kinds of bad names, but for the money there is in it.

For a fee of $750.00 you grant them this privilege and you are ONLY POWER that can grant or revoke their licenses. Therefore, as guardian of the saloon, the town board is responsible for their conduct. The people have elected the board to this position to stand between them and the saloon, and in order to stiffen back bones, put you on a strong anti-gambling platform.

You grant them license to run the business, not because of your love for such men or such a business but for the money there is in it. The bible tells us that "the love of money is the root of all evil" and you are surely getting lots of evil for very little money.

I wish you to note that last Sunday your saloons were doing business as usual. Last week a petition was presented to the county commissioners signed by 65 men and 2 women, stating that the managers of a house of ill-fame are men of respectable character and standing and asking that they be granted a license to sell spirituous and vinous liquors, and I am sorry to state that some members of the town board signed that petition, besides many others, whom the people supposed thought too much of their good name to place it upon a saloon petition.

What will not some people do for money or business? Surely "the love of money is the root of all evil."

GEO. H. HORNBY.

NATIONAL PHANTOMS

GHOSTS THAT HAUNT THE UNITED STATES CAPITOL.

A Story of Specters That Stalk at Night When the Halls of Legislation Are Gloomy and Deserted, as Told by One of the Old Guards.

Like most repositories of good stories, the ancient man who has spent decades as a guard in the capitol in Washington did not yield up the fullness of his narratory riches without a struggle. "It's unpleasant to be made a mock of by the skeptical," he protested. "Do you believe in ghosts, young man?"

"If answering in the affirmative begets an interesting tale, I do," returned the writer.

"Well, starting on the premise that you do believe to some extent in the supernatural, I will admit you to my confidence," resumed the old guard, and here goes for the authentic yarn of the spooks that haunt the nation's capitol:

"In the long, monotonous watches of the night innumerable are the spooks, hobgoblins and the eerie, vapory things which glide from the shadowy nooks and crannies of the intangible nowhere to people the capitol's vast stretches of darkness. Of course you know of the extraordinary acoustic freaks which obtain in many parts of the great building—how a whisper, a breathed word at one particular point is audible at another scores of feet distant? Yes. Now, at night these acoustic spirits simply go mad. Where they by day are pygmies they expand into giants, and a whistle, a sudden sound, a footfall, resolves itself into a pandemonium.

"Weird, terrifying noises beat upon the eardrums of the watchmen as they pursue their lonely patrols through the seeming miles of corridors, and then the spooks, the shades of the nation's great, the astral bodies of those that toiled in obscurity for the nation's good, dodge the watchmen's step, some grand and awful in their speechless dignity, some creeping humbly about in apologetic silence, some laughing, some sobbing, but all of them horrible—horrible."

The old man paused to muse. "Do you know," he said, breaking into his own reverie explosively, "Feb. 23 is a date dreaded by many of the capitol night guards? It was on this day, in 1848, that John Quincy Adams died in the chamber of the house of representatives, now Statuary hall, where the exact spot is marked by a brass tablet. Promptly at midnight on every anniversary of his death the shade of John Quincy Adams appears in a sort of phosphorescent glow over this brass tablet. Oh, dozens of guards have seen it from time to time as well as I, and I can refer you to many of them for affirmation of my assertions.

"Once over the spot the shade begins to gesticulate, after the manner of a member addressing the house. Then, all of a sudden, the fine face becomes distorted and agonized, the gracefully waving arms fall convulsively, and down sinks the shade with all the movements of an expiring man. Then the phosphorescent glow fades away, and the ethereal effigy dissolves.

"But, although lost sight of, its presence is still made known by the 'clump, flop, clump, flop,' of invisible footfalls departing down one of the long vacant corridors.

"Stranger than this is the ghost of the entire congress of 1848, which appears in vigorous if spooky session every once in awhile in Statuary hall. The old hall of representatives, as I have previously remarked, is audible, but spirited, are the debates; energetic to the bursting point of vehemence are the silent political dissensions. Provoked by a doubting Thomas, a member of the capitol night watch several years ago made affidavit that he had seen this ghostly congress in session. Yes, he was a sober man and true.

"The shade of General John A. Logan is a frequent visitor at the capitol. Almost every alternate night at half past 12 o'clock this ghost materializes at the door of the room occupied by the senate committee on military and militia. Silently the door swings open, and out steps the looming and luminous presence, to stalk in stately dignity away into the swallowing gloom. This is a favorite phantom with the guards. Its conduct is exemplary.

"Then there is the shade of Vice President Wilson, who died in his room in the senate end of the capitol, you will recall. Its peregrinations are few and desultory. When it does come, there is always an expression of concern and self-absorption in the ghostly face. The movements of the vapory body are restless and hurried.

"All of the older members of the night watch are well acquainted with Vice President Wilson's apparition and never fail to salute it, although, truth to tell, the shade remains laughingly indifferent to their deference. This spook rarely fails to put in an appearance when the body of a dead legislator or statesman of national renown is lying in state in the capitol.

"Deep in the subcellar vaults spooks of lesser magnitude revel in hordes. Immediately beneath the hall of representatives every night is to be found a tall, erect, gaunt specter, whose identity has remained a mystery for years in spite of unceasing efforts on the part of the night watch to uncover the secret of its origin and antecedents. Its hands are clasped behind its transparent back in a convulsive clutch, and the face evinces a condition of emotions prodigiously wrought upon. Many attempts have been made by guards with rubber soles on their shoes to catch this wraith unawares, but failure is the invariable result. Presto! It has blown into thin air before the sleuthing watchman is within forty feet of it."—New York Herald.

A Wonderful Trans-Pacific Journey of Six Months via

THE NORTH-WESTERN LINE AND ITS CONNECTIONS.

In line with its well known policy of development of trans-continental and trans-Pacific travel, the Chicago & North-Western Railway is now organizing a personally conducted round-the-world tour, to leave Chicago in October, visiting Hawaii, Japan, China, the Straits Settlements, Ceylon, India and Egypt, returning via the usual European points of interest on the way home.

The party will be most admirably provided for en route. The railway trip will be made on luxurious fast trains through the great Mississippi Valley over "the only double track railway between Chicago and the Mississippi River," and west via Denver and through the mountain wonderland of Colorado and Utah. The trip across the Pacific will be on one of the magnificent new Pacific Mail Co's steamers.

This trans-Pacific traffic has grown to such proportions that the service has been improved and elaborated until in many respects it is said to vie with that found on the finest trans-Atlantic greyhounds.

The trans-Pacific route is the coming highway over which American pleasure seekers will travel for recreation and sightseeing. Hawaii, Japan, China, Australia and our own Philippine possessions are full of interest and the number of visitors to these faraway lands increases with the increased facilities for travel.

A Wet Umbrella.

Never leave an umbrella standing on the point in the ordinary way when wet. The water trickles down, spoiling the silk and making the wires rusty. It is also a mistake to open it and leave it standing, as this stretches the silk, making it baggy so that it is impossible to fold it smoothly. The proper way is to shake out as much of the water as possible, then stand the umbrella on its handle to drain.

Comparisons Are Odious.

BLACK-DRAUGHT STOCK and POULTRY MEDICINE

Stock and poultry have few troubles which are not bowel and liver irregularities. Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is a bowel and liver remedy for stock. It puts the organs of digestion in a perfect condition. Prominent American breeders and farmers keep their herds and flocks healthy by giving them an occasional dose of Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine in their food. Any stock raiser may buy a 25-cent half-pound air-tight can of this medicine from his dealer and keep his stock in vigorous health for weeks. Dealers generally keep Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine. If you do not send 25 cents for a sample can to the manufacturers, The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

ROCHELLE, Ga., Jan. 30, 1902. Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is the best I ever tried. Our stock was looking bad when you sent me the medicine and now they are getting so fine. They are looking 20 per cent better. S. P. BROCKINGTON.

AS A WORKING TOOL

for the student and the writer, as an authoritative reference book for schools, families and business men, there is one book which offers superior advantages both in the solid value of its information, and the ease with which it is obtained.

One's admiration for Webster's International Dictionary increases daily as it comes to be better known. It never refuses the information sought and it never overwhelms one with a mass of misinformation illogically arranged.

The St. James Gazette of London, England, says: For the teacher, the pupil, the student and the litterateur, there is nothing better; it covers everything.

The New and Enlarged Edition recently issued has 25,000 new words and phrases, 2964 pages and 5000 illustrations.

Our name is on the title-pages of all the authentic dictionaries of the Webster series.
