Nebraska Potatoes.

Marked attention is being given at present to the diversity of Nebraska soil and its products; and the people of the state, by a series of experiments, are being given some valuable information through the medium of agricultural bulletins issued from time to time by the Chicago & North-western R'y. The latest subject treated in this series of pamphlets is the culture of potatoes in the soils of the north-western part of the state.

With an introductory paragraph referring to the history and production of this vegetable in all parts of the world, the pamphlet contains some interesting figures on the economic value of this food product, and specific information as to the best methods of planting, the preparation of soil and the cultivation and harvest of the crop. The adaptability of the soil in Sheridan, Daves, Box Butte, Scotts Bluff and other Nebraska counties has proven to be quite marked, and much of the land that has heretofore yielded little or no revenue, promises by this means to be a large return to the farmer.

This pamphlet is of value to everyone interested in western Nebraska, and together with the two recent bulletins issued by the North-Western Line, on Macaroni wheat and alfalfa, presents to the western farmer some valuable knowledge. Every farmer or ranchman in western and north-western Nebraska should have a copy of each of these bulletins. They are sent free on application to J. A. Kuhn, Assistant G. E. and P. A., Omaha, Nebraska.
