The recent cold weather culminated in a snow storm Monday which left the ground white and lasted till the sun came out Tuesday, but the weather continued cold and Tuesday night the local thermometers registered at 27° but turned warmer towards morning and Wednesday the weather was warmer, though the wind blew from the north all day and at times raised quite a bit of dust.
Today the weather is fair and warmer and the backbone of the winter at last seems to be broken.

There seems to be plenty of candidates in the field seeking the after a short visit with his son Earl goes over to White river, to visit another son, Cecil, where he expects to work at his carpenter's trade. Mr. Riddle's family are in Coffeerville, Kan., and he says it is just as cold and disagreeable there this spring as here or worse if possible, for it is very windy there. There's where people stake their houses out with guy ropes or cables to keep them from blowing away. Many frame houses in Southern Kansas we have seen tied from every corner with guy ropes to huge posts set in the ground. Frank smiles when we tell him about this but says the wind is too much for him there.
