Their children, grand-children and many friends that are gathered here today to help celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary do present them with these gifts and their best wishes as a token of their respect, wishing them many more years of happiness."

This was followed by a few words from A. E. Barnes, in which he sincerely thanked his children and grand-children on making this occasion a success and he complimented them on growing up as honest and upright men and women, never doing a misdemeanor that ever threw a disgrace upon the family.
